RUSSIANS HURL BACK ENEMY ON MOSCOW FRONT

Huns Continue In Full Retreat

Tempo Of Libya War Decreases

CAIRO, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The British command declared today the battle for Libya has slackened, with Empire forces reorganizing for a new test against the strongly-held Axis triangle formed by Rezegh, Mir El Hamed and Zaarran astride the broken corridor to Tobruk.

On both sides, general headquarters here said, troops and tanks are being regrouped for the next phase of the fight in which positions have shifted like the desert sands.

Patrol and aerial activity continued—feeling out weak spots for the next blows—but there were no reports of heavy fighting on any of the desert battlefronts where troops and tanks have clashed day and night for two weeks.

STILL CONFIDENT

Despite the German jab which brought Lt.-Gen. Erwin Rommel's two steel divisions together southwest of Tobruk, British military sources expressed unshaken confidence that Axis positions and forces would be smashed.

The Tobruk garrison which sallied out against the Axis rear

Alberta Not Quitting Due Debt Ruling

CALGARY, Dec. 3—(CP)—Premier William Aberhart said last night in an address to the closing sessions of the Social Credit Women's Auxiliaries: "They declared our debt adjustment act ultra vires, but don't think we are quitting."

Appealing to the women who had accomplished so much down through history in their fight for the franchise and recognition, Premier Aberhart said "we ought to realize every last one of us, there is need for the people of this province to keep on going."

PENSION INCREASE

The convention passed a resolution asking the Alberta government to make representations to the Dominion government for an increase in the old age pension to $30 a month, the cost to be shared between the Dominion, province and municipalities on the same basis as at present. It also asked the pensionable age be lowered to 60.

Other resolutions:

Urged mobilization of industry, natural resources, and finance for the war effort followed if necessary by conscription of manpower.

"Emphatically endorsed the protest of the government of the province and pledged support to any steps the government may deem necessary for the protection of provincial rights. A preamble to this resolution said Alberta is "practically being forced to suspend the imposition and collection of various forms of taxation for the duration of the war."

All officers were re-elected: They are: Mrs. William Aberhart, honorary-president; Mrs. B. A. Bendikson, Edmonton, president; Mrs Muriel Jury, Calgary, vice-president; Mrs. Len Williams, Edmonton, secretary.

Today's War Moves

By LOUIS F. KEEMLE
Copyright, 1941, by British United Press

THE magnitude of the task which Britain has undertaken in Libya becomes apparent with the momentary turn of the tide in Germany's favor.

The junction of the divided Axis forces in the region between Sidi Rezegh and Tobruk means that Gen. Erwin Rommel has a chance to withdraw his command through the gap in the British lines unless a renewed British drive succeeds in closing it.

The announced British objective is to trap the Axis forces in the Libyan "hump" and annihilate them. If they do not succeed in the present action, which so far has been confined to a narrow corner of northeastern Libya, there is a good chance that Gen. Rommel will be able to withdraw along the narrow coastal plain to stronger lines closer to Tripoli.

RESERVES UNKNOWN

If that occurs, the first phase of the British campaign will have failed. The reserve strength which Gen. Rommel has in the area to

Premier Pattullo Quits Party As B.C. Liberals Vote For Coalition

Resolution Favoring Move To Coalesce Is Passed By Convention

VANCOUVER, Dec. 3.—(CP)—The British Columbia Liberal Association Tuesday night adopted a resolution favoring a coalition form of government for the province, and a few minutes later Premier T. D. Pattullo told the delegates, "I am now in the position of where I cannot leave my name before you in any position."

Speaking after the vote of the emergency convention was announced—477 to 312 in favor of union government—Mr. Pattullo said:

"I appreciate those who took a stand that I thought they should take. I accept the verdict in the best spirit. You are no longer Liberals. You are Coalitionists. I am now in the position where I can not leave my name before you in any position. I would like to say that members of the cabinet who stayed with me can now take whatever stand they like. I don't mean any disrespect, but I have so much to do. What I want to see is an orderly opening of the house. I am accepting the verdict as a desire for coalition. As I do not agree with it I can not allow my name to be submitted in any form."

GIVEN OVATION

The premier then walked from the meeting and was given a great ovation by the delegates who remained to complete convention business.

The resolution recorded the Association's "belief that in the circumstances . . . formation of a coalition government will at this time best serve the public interest and that every reasonable effort should be made to secure this result."

It was adopted at an emergency convention called at the behest of association members to clear up the legislative stalemate brought about by last October's provncial election when Mr. Pattullo's administration won only 21 of the house's 48 seats, with 14 going to C.C.F., 12 to Conservatives and one to Labor.

REFUSED COALITION

Mr. Pattullo refused both Conservative suggestions for a Liberal-Conservative-C.C.F. coalition or the C.C.F. proposal of a Liberal-Conservative coalition. His stand brought resignation of five members of his cabinet.

The vote on the resolution was announced shortly before 8 p.m., P.S.T. (9 p.m., M.S.T.) when delegates reconvened after the dinner hour adjournment.

Earlier Mr. Pattullo had offered to take back into his cabinet "some of the stronger members" of the five who resigned over the coalition issues but declared that as far as coalition government was concerned "I'm not in it."

The premier, who wound up a three-hour debate on the coalition resolution, declared that "if it passes it will disrupt the Liberal party" and that "60 per cent of the Liberals will go to the C.C.F. if coalition goes through."

The preamble of the resolution dealt with the Liberal setback in the Oct 21 provincial election, in which the party elected only 21 members compared with 14 C.C.F., 12 Conservatives and one Labor.

Mr. Pattullo outlined to the convention the plans he had in mind

Tory Head Won't Comment On Move

VANCOUVER, Dec. 3—(CP)—R. L. Maitland, K.C., leader of the British Columbia Conservative party, would not comment today on the action of the Liberal party convention last night in putting itself on record as favoring establishment of a coalition government for the province and choosing John Hart as party head.

"The position is not very clear," he said. "I have nothing to add to my statement on Oct. 23." (In his statement on Oct. 23 Mr. Maitland urged formation of a three-party union government.)

Harold Winch, C.C.F. leader, was in Victoria attending a caucus of C.C.F. members.

Ottawa Thinks Far East Crisis Now Near Break

By B. T. RICHARDSON
Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, Dec. 3.—The Far Eastern crisis is within two or three days of a break one way or the other, informed sources indicated in Ottawa today. Canadian authorities have kept closely in touch with Pacific developments, which have centred on Washington for several weeks.

As a Pacific power, Canada would undoubtedly become involved in conflict in the Orient. It has a contingent of troops at Hong Kong and it has close relations with Britain and the United States, chief potential opponents of Axis-bound Japan.

CHIEF CLUE

Chief clue to the immediate situation lies not in Washington, but along the Indo-China coast at present, where a heavy and unexplained Japanese convoy is steaming southward. A check of the map gives the reader a rough rule to interpret for the next few days how things are turning out.

If Japan's sea going force lands at Haiphong, it reinforces Jap troops already in that area, and the situation remains critical but not at the breaking point.

If it lands in southern Indo-China, say at Camranh Bay or somewhere else along the Annam coast, this means that the Japs are getting a firmer grip on Indo-China, perhaps to spring at Thailand soon, and this would leave the situation critical but not immediately decisive.

But if the force lands on Thailand territory, say on the narrow Kra Isthmus, where it could cut off the Malay peninsula, it means war. At least that is the way one capital, Ottawa, looked at it today. If tomorrow's headline contains the name Kra, the worst has happened

Justice Minister Buried In Quebec

RIVIERE DU LOUP, Que., Dec. 3—(CP)—The body of Rt. Hon Ernest Lapointe was buried here today during a private ceremony attended by members of his immediate family and a few friends.

Interment was made after the arrival from overseas of the statesman's son, Lieut. Hugues Lapointe, who prayed for several minutes at the bier which has rested since Monday in a chapel-like vault in the cemetery.

The bier, placed in the vault after the body had lain in state at the city hall for two days, was brought here following state funeral services in Quebec.

British Evacuees Quit North China

MANILA, Dec. 3—(AP)—Some 450 British evacuees from North China, mostly women and children sailed from Shanghai Monday aboard the British vessel Anhui, advices reaching here disclosed today. The Anhui was expected to leave many of the evacuees at Hong Kong for trans-shipment to Australia and continue to India with the others. About half the evacuees are from India.

Raids On France

LONDON, Dec. 3.—(CP)—The air ministry said today the R.A.F. bombed objectives in occupied France last night and shipping off the Norwegian coast yesterday. Three British planes are missing.

Party Leadership Changes

Premier T. D. Pattullo, left, last night gave up leadership of the British Columbia Liberal Association when that body adopted a resolution favoring a coalition government and John Hart, right, former finance minister in the provincial cabinet, was later named to succeed him as party leader.

Premier Walks Out Of Caucus

VICTORIA, Dec. 3.—(CP)—Premier T. D. Pattullo today walked out of a Liberal caucus held on the eve of the meeting of the legislature, leaving the Liberal members to discuss the question of a coalition government with their new leader John Hart.

A statement issued by Mr. Hart after the morning session of the caucus said "the Liberals met this morning with a full attendance of the 21 elected members present. After some discussion the premier retired and the other 20 members declared for a stable or coalition form of government."

MAY LACK SUPPORTERS

The statement indicated Mr. Pattullo, who lost the leadership of the party last night at Vancouver after an emergency convention of the British Columbia Liberal Association adopted a resolution favoring formation of a coalition government, would face the legislature tomorrow without supporters.

The premier in his farewell address to the convention last night told cabinet ministers who had stood by him in his fight against coalition that they "can now take whatever stand they like."

The possibility that the legislature would find itself without a Speaker when it convenes tomorrow developed when C.C.F. leader Harold Winch announced today he would not second the nomination of Robert H. Carson, Liberal member for Kamloops, to that post. Mr. Carson was chosen by Premier Pattullo to succeed Norman Whittaker, former Speaker who was appointed attorney-general but who subsequently resigned over the coalition issue.

CAUCUS CONTINUES

"The premier asked me to second this nomination and I told him I would consult my caucus," said Mr. Winch. "It was the unanimous decision of the caucus that I should not second Mr. Carson's nomination as Speaker."

The Liberal caucus is continuing this afternoon, with the chief topic expected to be how the party can implement the mandate of the Liberal convention to form a coalition government as a means of offsetting the party's lack of a majority in the legislature. Facing the 21 Liberals are 14 C.C.F., 12 Conservatives and one Labor member in the 48-seat house.

Variations In Ceiling Price Director Says

Ceiling price of commodities will be the regular price charged during the basic period of September 15 to October 11 and variations prevailing at that time will continue to prevail, it was learned Wednesday from A. Fraser Little, regional licensing director of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

"My interpretation of the act as it relates to commodity prices is this," Mr. Little said. "The ceiling price is the regular price charged by each dealer during the basic period of September 15 to October 11.

"At that time there were variations in prices for the same commodity and there will be now, for most lines, under the ceiling price regulations.

"No common price can be definitely set as the resale price for most commodities, inasmuch as there are several methods of merchandising

CAIRO, Dec. 3. — (AP) — Rain swept by a bitter wind fell over a wide area of the Libyan battlefield Tuesday.

T.C.A. Atlantic Service Hinted

OTTAWA, Dec. 3.—(BUP)—Government quarters see the possibility of an air-line from Canada to Great Britain in operation by spring.

It was intimated in official quarters today that this passenger air service would be inaugurated by Trans-Canada Air Lines, alone or in association with British Overseas Airways.

Four-engined bombers would be routed from Montreal to Newfoundland and thence to Britain.

John Hart New Chief Of Party

By STUART UNDERHILL

VANCOUVER, Dec. 3. —(CP)—John Hart, former finance minister who is on record as favoring a coalition government for British Columbia, last night was chosen leader of the British Columbia Liberal party to succeed Premier T. D. Pattullo.

Mr. Pattullo walked out of the emergency convention of the British Columbia Liberal Association shortly after adoption of a resolution favoring a coalition government and Dr. W. J. Knox, association president, said, "I can take no other conclusion than that he does not wish to be leader."

The new leader, who earlier had told the convention how Mr. Pattullo asked for his resignation after he had expressed the opinion coalition was the only solution to the setback the Liberals received in the Oct. 21 provincial election, pledged himself to "revitalize, rehabilitate and rejuvenate this grand old Liberal Party."

(The emergency convention was called to settle the legislative tangle after the election in which the Liberals elected only 21 members of the 48-member house, C.C.F. 14, Conservatives 12 and Labor one. Five cabinet ministers resigned over Mr. Pattullo's refusal to entertain coalition proposals).

PATTULLO STILL PREMIER

Before Mr. Holt's unanimous election as leader, Dr. Knox told the convention their choice had nothing to do with the premiership of British Columbia, which Mr. Pattullo still holds.

Mr. Pattullo was given an ovation when he left the convention hall after the result of the vote had been announced as 477 to 312 in favor of coalition government.

The premier's reserve cracked only once when Dr. W. J. Knox acknowledged his farewell address by paying tribute to Mr. Pattullo's record as Liberal leader, a post he assumed in 1928. His eyes filled with tears as he stood to wave and call: "Good-bye, boys and girls," and then push his way through the crowd.

CLOSE COLLEAGUES

Drama was added to Mr. Hart's accession to the leadership by the fact that he and Mr. Pattullo were closer probably than any other col-

Taganrog Is Reached By Soviets

By The Canadian Press

Russia's Ukraine armies, pressing a counter-attack, were reported today to have advanced into the suburbs of Taganrog, 40 miles west of Rostov-on-Don, and driven the Germans out of 40 villages, while on the blizzard-swept Moscow front, other Soviet troops sent the Germans back 12 to 24 miles.

A Soviet broadcast announced that "bloody battles were fought yesterday evening in the suburbs of Taganrog," and Soviet dispatches said the Nazis were in headlong flight.

A Reuters news agency dispatch said the Germans had fallen back 36 miles in three days in the retreat from Rostov.

OTHER REVERSES

On the central front, the Nazis were apparently suffering further reverses.

Quoting latest advices from Moscow, the BBC said the Russians had sent the panzer forces of Col.-Gen. Heine Guderian spinning in reverse.

A communique from Hitler's field headquarters claimed fresh gains in violent tank and infantry battles before Moscow, but the Russians said the Germans had been thrown

Proposed U.K. Conscription Plan Rapped

By DOUGLAS AMARON

LONDON, Dec. 3—(CP)—Viscountess Astor, criticizing Prime Minister Churchill as having "a blind eye where women are concerned," said today in the House of Commons, "If you don't conscript married women there will be great discontent."

Speaking in the manpower debate on government measures to conscript unmarried women between 20 and 30 for the uniformed services but restricting "lethal or combatant" duty to women volunteers, Lady Astor said:

"There is no woman more old-fashioned than I am. It isn't fair to bring in a bill pretending women haven't come forward. Considering the muddle men have made, it is astounding women have done as well as they have."

ASK GREATER DEMANDS

Men, women and children will be affected by the new plans which are expected to be approved by parliament within two weeks with only opposition from members pressing for even greater demands on manpower and womanpower and extension of mobilization of industry.

Sir John Anderson, lord president of the council, replying for the government to the day's parliamentary discussion said the

Polish Army In Russia Soon Ready For Battle Line

Well-Drilled Soldiers Are Expected To See Action Within Two, Three Months

By A. T. STEELE

Copyright, 1941, by the Chicago Daily News, and The Edmonton Bulletin

KUIBYSHEV, Dec. 3.—(CDN)—With the arrival of a large consignment of British-made uniforms, the outfitting of the new Polish army in Russia is going forward. Part at least of the Polish military force will be fully equipped to pass in review before Gen. Wladyslaw Sikorski, premier of the Polish government-in-exile when he reaches this country shortly.

Gen. Anders, commander-in-chief of the Polish forces here, expects to have a considerable body of well-drilled soldiers, including many veterans of the Polish campaign ready to move into action against the Germans within two or three months.

The Polish troops have been under training for three months at three centres in Russia and their numbers is being continually augmented. Recruits are arriving in a steady stream from distant regions of Russia.

EXCLUSIVE

UNIFORM PROBLEM

The problem of uniforming the Polish volunteers is being solved through collaboration with the British. However, supplies of uniforms, greatcoats and shoes are just beginning to come in large quantities. The Russians are also contributing much in the way of equipment and arms.

The vast Polish community in the Soviet Union is anticipating Gen. Sikorski's visit with considerable interest for he symbolizes their revived hopes for the liberation of their homeland from the Nazi clutch.

During his brief stay of two or three weeks in this country Gen. Sikorski will pay a formal call at the Kremlin to confer with Stalin, inspect Polish camps and deliver a public address to the people of his own prostrate land.

The conference last week between the Polish minister and Soviet Premier Josef V. Stalin and the impending visit of Sikorski are indicative of the improving relations between the two peoples now united against Hitler.

VOLUNTEERS

There has been no difficulty in obtaining the thousands of Polish unteers from among Poles in the Soviet Union for a new army to fight side by side with the Russians. The task of assembling these legions, dispersed over a country as vast as this one, is formidable and will be a long time in completion.

News of contributions of clothing and supplies from Poles in the United States, Great Britain and other countries is welcomed more than money but transport and delivery are proving most difficult.

Recruiting For R.C.A.F. Nearly 7,000 Per Month

By B. T. RICHARDSON

Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, Dec. 3—Recruiting for the Royal Canadian Air Force has stepped up to between 5,000 and 7,000 men per month, an R.C.A.F. spokesman told The Bulletin today. This fact established the rate that for the first time since the war started the R.C.A.F. is drawing on Canadian manpower resources at the same rate as the Canadian Army.

The latest figure on army requirements coincidentally appeared today in a speech given by Brig. Gen. E. De B. Panet, district officer commanding M.D. 4 at Sorel, Que., in which he said: "Canada needs 7,000 men per month as replacements and additions to the present forces."

20 SQUADRONS OVERSEAS

The R.C.A.F. now has 20 squadrons of airmen overseas, it was confirmed unofficially today. Figures of this kind have no official standing, since they contain vital military information. The latest out-dated official information on R.C.A.F. strength overseas was that 84 squadrons of graduates of the Commonwealth Air Training Plan and three original R.C.A.F. squadrons were in Britain.

The step-up of Air Force recruiting, which has been increasing steadily, was due to two main factors, the expansion of the air training plan, and the creation of overseas formations. All scheduled schools of the air training plan will be in operation when the sole remaining initial training school, at Saskatoon, Sask., opens on Dec. 20, and the only other unopened school, a bombing and gunnery school at Quebec, opens on the same day.

The current objective of the air force is 25 squadrons overseas by the end of the year, and this objective is understood to be within sight.

As announced by Hon. C. G. Power, air minister, ground staff as well as aircrew are being provided for the overseas squadrons as steadily as possible. The output of air force technicians has not exceeded 20,000 of whom 10,000 have graduated from the St. Thomas, Ont., school. Most of these men have been needed in the air training plan in Canada, but in time Canada will have not only air crew but also complete ground staff for its overseas squadrons.

There will be 13 main regional offices of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, and as soon as possible branch offices of these regional offices will be established in other strategic points.

"In the organization plans now being completed by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, provision is made for the establishment of regional offices," Mr. Gordon said. AGAINST FASCISTS

Vast Rebellion Flares In Italy

ROME, Dec. 3.—(AP)—A vast fifth column rebellion against the Fascist regime, with at least 11 of its ringleaders still at large and an attempt to kill Mussolini among its terroristic exploits of sabotage and wholesale slayings, was officially reported last night.

The announcement by the Siefani news and propaganda agency declared that surreptitiously armed spies and saboteurs operating from the vicinity of Trieste had blown up munitions plants and wrecked trains, killing hundreds of Italians.

Mussolini was saved from assassination only "by a real miracle," Stefani said, in a plot hatched at Caporetto in 1938.

The anti-fascist movement was claimed to be under control of foreign powers, directly or indirectly, and plotting refugees filtering through the border area from old Yugoslavia were held responsible in large measure.

"Many responsible persons' were involved in the movement and 60 of the conspirators already have been arrested and put on trial before a special tribunal, Siefani disclosed. Among them, it asserted, were "communists" and "Semo-liberals."

The organization "imbued with an anti-Italian hate," was said to have been centred in Tries e with ramifications extending into surrounding provinces.

The Premier and the Governor respectively asked the heads of the Universities of Manitoba and Minnesota to direct their economic and business administrations facilities to co-operate in the study.

Mr. Bracken, in his letter to the University of Manitoba president, Sydney Smith, said in part: "The north central states of the United States of America . . . have been, and doubtless will be, in a situation similar to our own. It would seem, therefore, that a study of the post-war economic problems of these respective areas could be carried on most profitably in the joint action of investigators in both regions."

Wounded Flier Shows Courage In Saving Plane

By RICHARD MOWRER

CAIRO, Dec. 3—Planes aren't easy to come by out here in the Middle East and he was alarmed if he was going to let the Jerries get his American Tomahawk fighter.

So this young fellow, a South African, flew his plane back to within three miles of his landing ground—regardless. Regardless, that is, to the extent one can disregard the fact that one's foot has been almost amputated by something which smashed through the plane's belly during the fight.

SIMPLE STORY

It's a simple story, the way this young fellow's pals tell it. He was strafing a German column. His foot was suddenly all but blown off, but the plane was all right and he headed it homeward.

When he felt himself on the verge of passing out, the young fellow reached down, felt for his water bottle and sloshed water over his head and neck.

He was almost back to his base when faintness crept over him again—and there was no more water. So he landed his Tomahawk and passed out.

A simple story, the way his pals tell it. The young fellow is in a hospital; his Tomahawk is out scalping over the desert.

Shortage Cycle Tags Feared As 9,444 Are Sold

Edmonton's license department is facing a sell-out in bicycle license tags, and now has only 56 to carry it to the end of this year. Thomas McCallum, city license inspector, stated Wednesday.

Sale of bicycle licenses this year has been extraordinary, and at mid-summer it became necessary to order a further 1,000 tags to meet the demand. Only 56 of this order remain to be disposed of.

Increase in the number of bicycle licenses issued this year up to Dec. 1, according to a report made Wednesday by Mr. McCallum to the city commissioners, was 1,718. Total of licenses taken out this year was 9,444 compared with 7,726 last year.

Revenue for the department for the 1941 period amounted to $73,244.90 compared with $70,800.65 last year, an increase of $2,444.25.

Reason given for the large increase in bicycle licenses is that more people are taking to this mode of transportation to go to and from their places of business. A large increase in the number of bicycles owned by children is also a factor.

How I Became Acquainted with PARADOL

"Ever since I was married (13 years) I have suffered terribly with grinding pains in the abdomen during the periods. Last summer my head 40 miles to a show with a party of friends. Soon that pain started and I was terribly disgusted with myself. There was no enjoying the show and I had my husband call at a drug store for a box of Paradol. I took one tablet right there and what a surprise to find the pain gone right away. I was happy and singing on the way home.

It is a remarkable medicine for instead of periods lasting 9 or 10 days as formerly they are over in the usual time and without any pain or discomfort."—Mrs. M. B. It is a fine habit to always carry Paradol in your handbag.

PREMIER REMAINS FIRM IN STAND

Pattullo Quits Party As B.C. Liberals Favor Coalition

Resolution Favoring Move To Coalesce Is Passed By Convention In Vancouver

when he decided to carry on a minority government.

He said he had planned to form three all-party committees in the house, one to consider the war effort, the second to deal with post-war problems and the third to deal with financial matters and "make definite suggestions to cut down expenditures."

He maintained his opposition to coalition with the Conservative party, and said that C.C.F. leader Harold Winch had told him that the C.C.F. "wouldn't have anything to do with it."

"Have you any guarantee the Conservatives will coalesce?" he asked. "You are going to have this great Liberal party chasing after the tail of the Tories, and we know what they'll get."

"We can't coalesce because everyone knows it is just for the purpose of carrying on," he said, and added that if a Liberal-Conservative coalition were effected "they'll be fighting like cats and dogs within three or four days."

ARGUMENTS PRESENTED

Mr. Pattullo was preceded by several speakers arguing the pros and cons of coalition. They included Geo. Pearson, former minister of labor; John Hart, former finance minister, and K. C. MacDonald, former agriculture minister. All resigned over the coalition issue and all spoke in favor of the resolution.

The resolution placed before the 700 rank and file delegates of the association called as a result of the Liberal setback in the Oct. 21 provincial election and the premier's repeated refusal to consider coalition and union government appeals, read in part:

That the British Columbia Liberal Association delegates "record their belief that in the circumstances the formation of a coalition government will, at this time, best serve the public interest and that every reasonable effort should be made to secure this result."

FORMULATED BY COMMITTEE

The resolution was formulated as a resolutions committee of 16 named at the morning session of the convention. The committee members heard the advice of President W. J. Knox of the association to "Think of Canada, province and party" in their deliberations.

The resolution was moved by Byron L. Johnson, former M.L.A. for Victoria city, and seconded by Captain C. R. Hall, Liberal member for South Okanagan in the last legislature.

Premier Pattullo himself addressed the morning session of the convention and was given a rousing cheer. He spoke only briefly and said he hoped and expected "a very interesting day."

HOLD 21 SEATS

The Liberals hold 21 seats in the provincial legislature—not enough for a working majority against the 12 Conservatives, 14 C.C.F. and one Labor member in the 48-seat house.

Mr. Pattullo opposed a suggestion by Conservative Leader R. L. Maitland, calling for a union government of the three parties and a suggestion for a coalition of Liberals and Conservatives, made by Harold Winch, C.C.F. leader.

His stand cost the premier the support of five cabinet ministers who have vowed support of coalition government, and several private members have taken a similar stand. However, the premier has maintained that neither of the parties were given a mandate by the people to coalesce and that he intends to face the opening session of the legislature, Dec. 4, with a straight Liberal government.

and consequently a variation in the cost of selling.

"For example, flour may be sold by a groceteria, with no delivery costs and with very limited selling cost. Flour may be sold by a service grocery, with delivery costs and credit costs of charge accounts. Also flour may be sold by a corner merchant, who often handles flour on a consignment basis and with no explicit invested.

DIFFERENT COSTS

"All three have different selling prices but, taking into consideration the different overhead operating costs of the seller, the actual net profit to each dealer will not vary a great deal.

"It is definite selling price for all would undoubtedly react to the benefit of one class of dealer or to the detriment of another class."

leagues in the house. Both were elected to the legislature in 1916. Mr. Pattullo became minister of lands the same year and Mr. Hart became finance minister the following year.

Mr. Pattullo has been in the legislature ever since, but Mr. Hart retired from politics from 1924 to 1933, when he stood and was elected in Victoria, again being given the finance portfolio.

Mr. Hart mentioned this association in his address of acceptance. He said he had "never aspired" to the leadership and went on:

POST-WAR CONDITIONS

"For some time we have prided ourselves—the Liberals—as the middle-of-the-road party . . . but great changes are taking place. . . . Liberalism must be streamlined and revitalized and so prepared to cope with post-war conditions.

"After the war social services and social security for young and old must be recognized in British Columbia."

Mr. Hart was nominated by George S. Pearson of Nanaimo and Dr. G. M. Weir of Vancouver. Mr. Pearson, who earlier in the day had referred to himself as the "bad boy" of the party, was the first of five cabinet ministers to resign over the coalition issue. Dr. Weir, former provincial secretary and minister of education, was defeated in the Oct. 21 election but soon afterwards announced he favored coalition.

In his farewell speech Mr. Pattullo expressed appreciation for ministers who had not left his cabinet and said "members of the cabinet who stayed with me can now take whatever stand they like."

The ministers—lands minister A. Wells Gray, public works minister R. W. Bruhn, agriculture minister Frank Putnam and mines minister C. S. Leary—were not available for comment.

Libyan Battle Tempo Showing Some Decrease

lines was holding nearly all its ground, including Ed Duda, a few miles from Rezegh.

An authoritative source said one important aspect of the battle in the Libyan sector was that it prevented Axis forces from supporting their advanced positions along the frontier area of Salum, Halfaya Pass and Sidi Omar.

Here, he said, Empire troops were mopping up steadily.

Some of the Axis positions along the frontier were said to be extremely strong.

"It would have taken terrific fighting to overpower them," his source said, "if the enemy had his tanks there to support them."

NOT UNDER-ESTIMATED

Questioned whether the German tank strength in Libya was greater than had been anticipated, he commented: "I don't think their strength has been under-estimated at any time."

Action for the most part, a communique indicated, consisted mostly of patrols and localized skirmishes. Both the British and German forces are reported sparring for a position and reorganizing battle-scarred forces preliminary to a major new test of strength.

The British command disclosed the Axis powers were attempting to supply their advanced forces near the Egyptian-Libyan frontier by sea.

SHIP DRIVEN OFF

One small vessel which attempted to slip through the British naval cordon and carry supplies to beleaguered Axis forces in the Salum-Halfaya sector, was officially reported intercepted and driven off before reaching its destinatin.

Prisoners captured in Libya during the recent heavy fighting are continuing to arrive in Egypt, the communique declared. Among the captives was a senior staff officer of the German African army.

The bulletin indicated British forces were in possession of Ed Duda, a few miles southeast of Rezegh, where the Germans were acknowledged yesterday to have cut through a British line dividing their forces.

DESTROY AXIS GUNS

A patrol operating from Ed Duda succeeded in destroying a number of enemy guns in a sally toward Rezegh, the headquarters announcement said.

"Our mobile patrols," it added, "have been active in clearing the battlefields."

The Royal Air Force, supporting ground troops, bombed German troop concentrations in both the El Adem and Rezegh areas.

(A London broadcast heard by CBS said it had been discovered that at least half the tanks of the Italian "battering ram" division, which the British reported routing yesterday, were manned by Germans.)

"proposals represent not so much a request for additional powers as a declaration of intention to go further than ever before in the use of existing powers."

Sir John said that already there was control of production and distribution, of prices and profits and he did not know how much further that would go.

He was aware, however, he said, that there was a "feeling in certain quarters that the government was more ready to exercise powers dealing with human material than to exercise powers they already possess to deal with property."

SEES NO PARALLEL

This remark drew cheers from the Labor members who mainly listened in silence.

Sir John added:

"I cannot see any very close parallel between conscription of labor and conscription of wealth. A considerable proportion of people who will be rendering services under the bill also have a certain amount of property."

Under the defence acts the government already has taken property required by the war. Sir John said. He listed privately-owned United States, Indian and Dominion securities and the American Viscose Corporation as thus treated. In addition United States businesses of British firms had been pledged as security for the £100,000,000 loan granted by the United States.

PUT OUT OF BUSINESS

The Lord President of the Council declared the government in exercising its requisitioning power whenever necessary had put out of business "whole sections of the population who are handling private property" and gave as examples the metal bankers who "have nothing whatever to do" and the supporting business which "will inevitably all taken over by the government.

The result of all this is that those who derive their income from business profits have received treatment entirely different from that of wage earners," he said.

"The earnings of the wage earning community during the war have gone up something like 43 per cent. The returns of company earnings on the other hand, above business profits which, after deduction of tax are, in terms of money, at least 70 per cent less than before the war. But whatever further measures should be necessary to mobilize the whole effort, they will be taken and taken without hesitation," Sir John said.

THREAT OF SPLIT

Meanwhile, the threat of a serious split in the Labor party over the new conscription proposal was reported in parliamentary circles as a large number of Labor members met behind locked doors to discuss the bill.

The reported split in Labor opinion was over the question of conscription of property as well as manpower.

In the House of Commons, Henderson Stewart, National Liberal, accused the Labor party of attempting a campaign "for socialism in the time-smarter". He said, "They think it a heaven-sent opportunity to bring about something which in peacetime they failed to get the electorate to approve."

Prime Minister Churchill asked the House of Commons yesterday for authority to draft 3,000,000 men for war services and to require women to join uniformed branches.

A royal proclamation was issued today giving effect to the first step in the Prime Minister's programme—a summons of 70,000 youths 18½ years old for service in the armed forces. The previous minimum was 19

MANY DISAPPROVE

Informed sources said many members of the Labor Party disapproved of the government proposals and that there was wide support for an amendment signed by 30 M.P.'s for nationalization of private property.

Reports circulated of a heated discussion at the closed meeting. It was decided to reconvene tomorrow for a vote on party procedure which might lead to a party regular vote in commons later or an agreement by the government to schedule full debate on the bill.

Some Labor members were said to feel so strongly on the matter that they might break from the party leadership which is a part of the all-party government

OPPOSE NATIONALIZATION

On the other side of the picture is strong opposition to further conscription of wealth or extension of nationalization.

Parliament members of that view contend the unprecedented income tax rate of 50 per cent already constitutes conscription of wealth to a large degree. They hold also that strict steps by the government to limit profits and prevent profiteering as well as state requisitioning of buildings and restrictions of railroad operations amount to government control.

The government's plan was viewed by almost every newspaper as an expression of determination to bring the country nearer the total war effort which Britain claimed was lacking at present.

The plan is expected to be approved by parliament within two weeks despite the developing opposition.

Morning newspapers were warm in praise of Mr. Churchill's statement to parliament yesterday upon the government's plans which include extension of the conscription age for military service to 50, lowering of the service age from 19 to 18½, conscription of unmarried women between the ages of 20 and 30 for non-combatant military service, and registration of boys and girls between 16 and 18.

WANT TO "FINISH JOB"

"Britain's desire today is to finish the job it has begun and finish it quickly as possible," said the News Chronicle, which expressed belief that the country will eagerly embrace the proposals.

"Most people realize the war can only be won quickly, if British power is full mobilized, and they have long been waiting an opportunity to make a great personal effort," the paper said. "That opportunity for many is now at hand."

The Daily Telegraph said: "From each one of us more strenuous work and greater sacrifices are required. We are ordered forward to harder living that each and all may do the utmost in bringing the fully-deployed strength of our country to beat down the enemy."

The Daily Express: "Men and women no longer are invited into this war effort of Britain. All of them must show cause why they are not in it already."

IS NOT CURE-ALL

His paper warned conscription is not the cure for all problems and said the new powers will mean nothing "unless they have behind them the old power of sacrifice and the freely - given effort of our people."

The Times, declaring the proposals must be measured in the knowledge the road to victory is long and hard, said: "The principle of the scheme marking as it does an encouraging advance in defensive and offensive power will be accordingly endorsed by the public as it was by the House of Commons."

Most papers accompanied their approval with a warning to the government to make full use of the powers it plans to take.

"The new measures will on the whole be generally approved," said the tabloid Daily Sketch, but added: "We are bound to ask whether the government has used all the powers it already has to the best advantage."

USE EVERYTHING

"The real point is the government should take all the powers it requires to use everything we can give," the Sketch continued. "Everything will now depend on the way in which the new measure is administered."

The Daily Herald (Labor) in supporting members who put up an amendment calling for immediate public ownership and control of key war industries and services, said: "Property, like persons, must be fully harnessed to the wagon of war."

"Finance can no longer be exempt from the compulsions which are imposed upon fresh blood," the Herald said. "Every industry whose efficiency is vital to victory must come either under ownership of the state or control of the government."

British Form Solid Line On El Gobi Sector

By EDWARD KENNEDY

WITH ADVANCED BRITISH FORCES IN CIRENAICA, Dec. 2 —(Delayed)— (AP)—Withdrawing from various scattered positions, British forces have established themselves along a solid line, marking a definite turning point in this fantastic campaign.

Rather than continue wholesale guerilla fighting in which positions changed so rapidly it was scarcely possible to tell the enemy from their own formations, the British command decided that a better way to whittle down Lt.-Gen. Erwin Rommel's strength was to fight from a strong line.

OFFENSIVE LINE

The El Gobi line is offensive, rather than defensive. As soon as it was formed tank units in front of it began sallies against the enemy. Various infantry units, wearied by more than a week of straight fighting, retired behind it for badly-needed rest which now can be obtained in security.

(Apparently the El Gobi is the southern anchor of the new British line running irregularly northward toward Tobruk. Bir El Gobi is about 40 miles south and slightly east of Tobruk and about 60 miles west of Sidi Omar on the Egyptian-Libyan border.)

Re-formation also was necessitated by the German armored counter-attack northeast of the Tobruk corridor which closed that avenue for the time being.

Forces holding the corridor either pointed to the El Gobi line or toward Tobruk which still stands as strong as ever and holds much of the land taken beyond the perimeter.

Rommel's 15th division in the Rezegh area also made gains in the last 24 hours as it fought with unabated ferocity despite diminished strength.

BRITISH DISADVANTAGE

One British disadvantage has been that the Germans have been concentrated while British forces have been spread out over a wide expanse. The Germans also appear to have had vastly greater stores than British officers counted on.

We found falling back with the British forces orderly and quiet compared with the fighting which had preceded the move. British troops had fought rearguards, retiring under cover of night, and the Germans did not pursue nor attack by air. Reinforcements of new line was formed with every unit in its place.

The wounded have been taken into Egypt, the more serious by plane.

Much captured German material, including vehicles which were excellent since the Germans are eating well, were placed in desert automobile, and with seized telegraphic apparatus was carried back to the El Gubi line.

NAZI VEHICLES

It was curious to see British soldiers driving around in vehicles bearing the Nazi African Corps insignia—a swastika imposed on a palm tree. Prisoners also were moved and placed in wire cages in the desert behind the line awaiting transport into Egypt.

The distance of the withdrawal in some cases was as great as 20 miles.

"But this means little in this kind of war," a senior officer said. "It's just as though the fleet moved back 20 miles during the night in a naval battle to have a better place to battle from."

The move permits Rommel to take the remains of his corps westward if he decides to do so. It is believed more likely he will remain and fight it out as he has been doing.

Only 3 Escape Unhurt As Big Bus Is Wrecked

FERNIE, B.C., Dec. 3—(CP)— Only two persons and an infant baby escaped unscathed when a big Calgary-bound bus plunged through a flood-weakened bridge over Lizard Creek near here last night and today police sought the body of a woman believed drowned when she plunged into the creek in a fit of hysterics after being extricated from the wreck.

Ten of the 16 passengers in the bus were brought to hospital here. Three others were quartered in a local hotel after their injuries had been dressed.

Passengers escaped from the wrecked bus through an emergency exit after the big machine plunged through the bridge whose timbers apparently had been weakened by the flood waters of the creek.

TRAFFIC CUT OFF

The accident completely cut off all west-bound traffic from the town in the Crow's Nest Pass near the British Columbia-Alberta boundary line.

Name of the drowned woman is unknown. C. Hultine, Vernon, B.C., and Earl Tillson, address not known, escaped unhurt.

Among those injured in the accident were:

James Kidd, bus driver, Macleod, Alberta, internal injuries and burns, condition serious.

PO. Leslie J. M. McLeod, R.C.A.F., De Winton air station, De Winton, Alta., ear and burns.

T. W. Cuyler, Calgary, leg injuries.

Leonard Role, Moriach, Sask., shock.

Mrs. Meeker, Sheridan, Oregon, leg injuries and shock. It was Mrs. Meeker's baby which escaped unharmed.

Later during the night a slide between Michel, B.C., and the Alberta boundary blocked eastbound traffic.

A washed out roadbed derailed the M.F. and M. railway load carrying the extra night shift to the Fernie and Coal Creek coal mines. No one was injured.

HEAVY RAINS

Heavy rains, which at times have reached torrential proportions, have disrupted all highway traffic and rail lines last night cut off electric power at intervals.

Trains are running behind schedule because of slides in the mountains.

back in two key sectors and generally painted a brightening picture of the two-months-old struggle for the capital.

MANY HUNS FROZEN

In the Ukraine, Soviet dispatches said Red armies counter-marching through the Donets river industrial basin were finding the frozen bodies of Germans wrapped in flimsy blankets, huddled in roadside ditches, and that to save themselves from the bitter cold the Nazis were fighting with suicidal fury to hold villages where they could find warmth and shelter.

A London broadcast said Hitler had replaced Field Marshal Walther Von Brauchitsch, commander in chief of the German army, in the Ukraine in an attempt to "stop the rout at all cost."

German armored reinforcements were reported moving along the Dnieper river valley as the Russians sweeping counter-offensive, which appeared to have hurled the Germans back more than 75 miles from this farthest eastward thrust to the Novocherkassk region, 35 miles beyond Rostov. According to Soviet reports, the Germans are falling back somewhere between Taganrog, 40 miles west of Rostov, and Mariupol.

Mariupol is 100 miles west of Rostov.

LOSE 21,000 MEN

Soviet front-line dispatches said the battered German forces under Field Marshal Ewald Von Kleist had lost more than 21,000 men killed and wounded in the running battle along the shores of the sea of Azov.

On the winter-bound central front, where the Germans asserted their troops were within sight of Moscow's towers, a bulletin from Hitler's headquarters claimed tank-led Nazi infantry supported by dive bombers cut fresh wedges through Soviet defence lines. It gave no details.

By contrast, the Russians said Gen Gregory Zhukov's armies recaptured three villages in the critical Mozhaisk sector, 70 miles west of Moscow, and drove the Germans believed more likely to be the Stalinogorsk sector, 120 miles southeast of the capital.

The enemy is retreating southward under the pressure of our cavalry and tanks," said the newspaper Pravda, referring to the Stalinogorsk action.

In the north, around long-besieged Leningrad, the Russians said 1,000 Germans had captured eight tanks and 14 field guns.

ASKS EXPLANATION

Japs Faced With F.D.R. Question

By LLOYD LEHRBAS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—President Roosevelt has posed a question for Japan which—paradoxically—may hasten a final showdown in the Pacific, or bring about an armed truce that would save Thailand, temporarily at least, from becoming a Far Eastern battlefield.

Since the President's question calls for a forthright explanation of Japan's immediate intentions, informed diplomatic quarters here believe it will bring the Pacific crisis to a head within the week.

The question, described by Mr. Roosevelt himself as a simple question which he expected Tokyo to answer promptly, was:

Just what are Japan's purposes in increasing her armed forces in French Indo-China?

That sprawling region flanks Thailand, the former Siam, on the east.

SENT TO TOKYO

Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura and Saburo Kurusu, the Japanese envoys, dispatched the White House request for information by Tokyo immediately after it was presented to them by State Under-Secretary Sumner Welles at a conference yesterday.

President Roosevelt's public intervention brought no break in the existing tension and officials here generally considered the situation in the Pacific one of undiminished gravity.

Assistant Navy Secretary Ralph A. Bard, in an address last night at Norfolk, Va., asserted "the Pacific is like a tinderbox—waiting for a spark that will explode all over the eastern quarter of the globe."

POSSIBLE ANSWERS

As to the specific question Mr Roosevelt raised regarding Thailand, authoritative sources here said Japan's answer apparently may be one to fall into one of three categories.

A meaningless, evasive reply or one rejecting the right of the United States to make such an inquiry, it was stated, presumably would push the present crisis to a breaking point.

A restatement of Japan's claim to Indo-China as an element in the "new order of Asia" might result in renewed discussions on that particular subject. Such a renewal would give Japan an opportunity to seek economic concessions from the United States and the U.K.-B.C.D. powers in return for withdrawal of military forces from the French colony.

The third type answer would be based on the fact that Japanese interests were being menaced by Britain's concentration of troops in Burma and Malaya along the Thailand border, and the recent arrival of British naval reinforcements in nearby waters.

SOME POSSIBILITIES

Diplomatic possibilities were seen in an answer of this type, even though the charge would directly counter British assertions that Japanese forces massed along the Thai border constituted a menace to British Malaya and Burma, Thailand's neighbors.

If both Japan and Britain parties to such a dispute, it was pointed out, the United States might mediate the question, recommend that each retain withdraw its forces, and establish a neutral no-man's land around Thailand.

Diplomatic sources, speculating on that possibility, admitted it would not achieve a general settlement of Pacific problems, but said it might preserve the status quo in the Far East, at least temporarily, as the alternative to war.

Axis Propaganda Signs Intensifying Crisis In Far East

TOKYO, Dec. 3—(BUP)—The familiar Axis propaganda signs have intensified the crisis in the Far East.

The Japanese press is expressing fear that the French are not capable of keeping order in Indo-China. It is howling that Thailand is threatened by Britain.

The newspapers also are hinting that Japan has made economic demands on the Siamese and an important Japanese official in Hanoi suddenly has returned to Tokyo for conferences on the Indo-Chinese situation.

Buffalo Herd At Elk Island Is Being Reduced

Culling and slaughter of 500 head from the buffalo herd at Elk Island Park started Wednesday morning when the crack of Sam Purshell's .303 rifle dropped the first animal.

The killing will continue until the least fit of the herd have been "weeded out." After killing the animals will be carefully inspected by government veterinaries and the meat of the best of them will be sold.

There are 1,700 head in this herd and, as the herd is becoming too large for the grazing in the park, it is being reduced.

Superintending the killing are Dr. H. I. Love, park superintendent and Ray Sharp, buffalo warden.

HIDES FOR COATS

From the beginning of this week the round-up of the herd has been going on. Trails of feed led the animals to corrals in one section of the park, where cowboys, spurring their horses and letting out great yells, herded them into the enclosures.

Warden Sharp there gave the nod for the "culling out" and selected animals were herded into the open to be brought down by Sharpshooter Purshell's rifle.

Bulls and cows, without calves, over 15 years of age, are among the animals picked for the slaughter. Care is taken never to separate a cow from her calf in the round-up.

Meat will be on the market for Christmas and is regarded as a delicacy in Canada and the United States. The hides will be made into coats for the R.C.M.P., and he heads mounted and sold.

JAPANESE LEGIONS HELD AT BAY

Boys Of Seventeen Serve In China's Courageous Army

Heavily Burdened Youths Struggle Doggedly Onward To Battle Relentless Foe

This is the sixth and last of a series by Leland Stowe on Free China's capital.—EDITOR.

BY LELAND STOWE

Copyright, 1941, by the Chicago Daily News, and The Edmonton Bulletin

CHUNGKING, Dec. 3.—(By Clipper)—(CDN)—We were rickshaing down to the Yangtze ferry when we ran plumb into it—into the thing which you'll probably never see in any other army in the world; the thing which says just about all there is to say about why the seemingly hopelessly inferior Chinese forces have held the formidably equipped Japanese armies at bay for more than four years.

We came upon a platoon of Chinese soldiers. They wore shorts of a faded yellow material and they were very young; not much more than 17 or 18, it seemed, but many a few were 26 or even 21. Each soldier was carrying two huge bundles of hay, suspended on the inevitable pole slung across one shoulder. You could see from the way they walked that hay can be extremely heavy, if you take enough of it at one haul.

Leland Stowe

EXCLUSIVE

They were all lugging these gigantic double-ended bundles of hay—all except one soldier and, of course, the sergeant. The one unloaded boy-soldier was struggling to lift his load of hay onto his shoulder. He had skillfully placed under body, not much more than skin and bones, and his legs were so thin they looked almost like stilts all the way up to the thighs. The boy-soldier (boy or less than boy in physique, no matter what his age was) struggled clumsily with his two bundles of hay on a pole. He lifted with every ounce in his fragile body, once, twice, three times—but he never could get his burden more than three feet off the ground.

SERGEANT HELPS

The sergeant stepped over to give the soldier a hand. I couldn't see what good it would do. That scrawny picked-legged Chinese soldier was already gasping from his exertions. But the sergeant had muscle for two. He got the centre of the pole up on the boys' shoulder at last and slowly, stubbornly, silently, the lad managed to rise to his full height. The sergeant stepped back. The soldier staggered forward with his load. A few pedestrians idly resumed their way. The soldier, with his thin legs wobbling like those of a prize-fighter who will be floored by one more punch, tottered unsteadily up the road. There was a long climb ahead, but he lurched doggedly up the road. We were rickshaing down-grade and going pretty fast. We didn't see any more.

Today's War Moves

ward Tripoli can only be conjectured, it is reasonable to assume that he has not risked everything against the first British assault in the Egyptian border area.

If he fails to hold there and has to retreat, Rommel will be in a better strategic position farther west. Assuming that the opposing forces are equal—Britain's reverse after two weeks of fighting would indicate that they are approximately so—the British have the advantage in Eastern Libya.

Their communication lines are hundreds of miles shorter. They have control of the sea and can throw in men and material with far greater ease than the Axis, whose main base is at Tripoli, nearly 1,000 miles away. If Rommel is pushed back to Tripoli, the British supply problem will be as great as that of the Axis now, and they will have the problem of reconstituting intermediate depots evacuated and destroyed by the Germans.

PROBLEM LAST YEAR

Britain's problem is illustrated by the outcome of the offensive Dec. 9, 1940. The British drove nearly 500 miles westward along the coast to Agheila. Although the Italians were in disorder, the British stopped there. After a pause of two months, the Italians were reinforced strongly by the Germans and in 10 days of last April, the combined Axis forces drove the British all the way back to Egypt.

It is true that the British have sent a southern flanking force across the desert past the Gialo oasis, aimed at reaching the road around Bengasi and cutting off a westward retreat. There is no adequate road along that route, however, and it is a question whether the British could complete such a movement in adequate force.

Interpreting War News

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

EVER-CHANGING contours of the Libyan tank battle defy accurate analysis at present; but on the Russian front winter is marshalling its ice and snow brigades to aid Moscow's defenders.

Red Army reports tell of a German repulse in the Tula area, southeast of Moscow, with Nazi invaders ousted from numerous villages and retreating through heavy snow, drifting before a biting wind. Two hundred miles and more to the north the upper Volga and its tributaries are already ice bound, yet not deeply enough frozen to carry the weight of Nazi tanks, heavy guns and motor transport.

Heavy snowfalls are due soon all the way from the northern rim of the Ukraine battle front to Leningrad. Should the reported drifting snow fall just southward of Moscow herald the onset of a typical mid-December snow deluge in that area, Nazi hopes of early encirclement or capture of the Soviet capital must drop to a new low.

There is another factor lending to lessen German pressure in the Moscow battle, however. The Russian counter offensive on the Don front, which appears to have forced the Nazis back 40 miles and more from the Rostov gateway to the Caucasus, calls for a prompt German reaction, for reasons of prestige alone.

The Rostov retreat looks like the worst German defeat of the whole war. Transfer of enemy forces from the all but stalemated Moscow front southward would be a logical German move. It may be already in progress from the southern or Tula sector of the Moscow battle arc and this may account in part for a reported German retreat on that front also.

SHIFT INDICATED

If that indicated shift of Nazi divisions from the Moscow battle zone to the Rostov-Don area is going on, it means the German high command has already written off the Moscow campaign as a failure for this year. Only southward, on the Caucasus front, can Hitler's generals plan on a continuous winter war of motion in Russia. They cannot afford to see the lines stabilize there on a front set by Red army initiative.

Dual Fatality Was Accidental Jury Decision

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin
EVANSBURG, Dec. 3—A verdict of accidental death was returned here Tuesday by a coroner's jury, investigating the fatal crash of two trucks on the Jasper highway, about half a mile from Wildwood, Alta., on Nov. 19, in which Melville Griffith and Elmer Edward Hanson were killed.

Dr. E. A. Braithwaite, of Edmonton, provincial coroner, presided at the investigation. The jury decided that the light delivery truck, driven by Griffith crashed into another truck operated by Floyd Street, of Edson, Alta., because a steamed up windshield had obstructed the driver's view.

Cpl. James Muir of the R.C.M.P., Cpl. Morrin, R.C.M.P., Edmonton, and R.C.M.P. officer Derrick of Evansburg, who took charge soon after the accident, were present at the inquiry. J. F. Thompson acted as court reporter.

DOCTOR TESTIFIES

Dr. Chisholm of Evansburg was the first witness to be called. He testified that Elmer Swanson died of shock, due to internal hemorrhage in the chest and abdomen and that Melville Griffith, aged 40, succumbed to a skull fracture. Dr. Chisholm also testified that Jurgen Bottnen, injured in the crash, had been removed to hospital.

R.C.M.P. officer Derrick told the jury that he had been notified of the accident by William Hogland, of Wildwood, and that he arrived on the scene at about 7:30 p.m., only to find both Griffith and Hanson dead. Other people involved in the wreck were Dick Hyman, foreman of the F. J. Hanson camp, Arnold Bell, Peter Leroy, William Hogland, all employed at the camp, and Jurgen Bottnen.

Mrs. Emma McDermid, who lives near the scene of the accident told the jury that on the night of Nov. 19 she heard a terrific crash as the accident occurred and rushed out immediately to render first aid.

Other witnesses to give evidence at the hearing included H. Sanders, Edson farmer, who was riding with Floyd Street at the time, Earl Hanson, brother of Elmer Hanson and also Mrs. Griffith.

DESCRIBES ACCIDENT

In describing the accident Floyd Street, declared that he was returning to Edson from Edmonton and was proceeding at about 30 miles an hour when he saw another vehicle, operated by Griffith, approaching. He said that he thought everything was alright and then suddenly the crash took place.

The jury consisted of Edward Wilson, Austin McKelvie, Wm. Barwise, Guy Lamoureux and Frank Muldoon, all of Evansburg.

They further stated that firms and individuals mailing calendars should not do so at the height of the Christmas rush. Special delivery service is recommended to those whose mailings have been delayed. In such cases the air mail service may be beneficial, they claim.

Quebec Strives For Sane Unity States Godbout

MONTREAL, Dec. 3—(CP)—Premier Godbout told a luncheon gathering here today that Quebec was probably striving more than any other province to establish sound and sane national unity.

"We try," he said, "and I think we succeed in assuring mutual understanding based on respect of the province's autonomy. We believe that diversity of language in Canada is a good thing for the country. Surely, no one among you would deny that French and English qualities, mixed, could produce a great people."

ATTITUDE TO FRANCE

He outlined the French Canadian's attitude to France.

"... We cannot help suffering when France suffers. We are humiliated when she is humiliated. When she is insulted, we resent the injury as much as if it had been directed at us. This is to explain that we want a liberated France. So, we cannot hesitate before anything, before any sacrifice, to harken Canada's, Britain's, civilization's victory."

Mr. Godbout asserted Quebec was giving three men for every man she gave in the last war. "We pay more than lip service to the cause of democracy, which is, for us, tantamount to law and order."

He said that of the 229,700 men enrolled in the armed forces of Canada at the beginning of the year, Quebec supplied 50,000 in addition to hundreds of other French Canadians enlisted in other provinces. The extent of this enlistment, he said, was indicated by the fact that in one western Ontario regiment overseas two of the four companies were French Canadian, and that in nearly every regiment French Canadians were serving.

Heavy Damages Are Awarded By Court

HAMILTON, Ont., Dec. 3—(CP)—Total damages of $337,554.45 were awarded by a Supreme court jury late Tuesday to Angus McIntosh, former Montreal and Hamilton importer, in his damage suit against Homewood Sanitarium of Guelph, Ont. McIntosh claimed false imprisonment and sued for $1,500,000.

The jury deliberated more than four hours following a one-hour charge by Mr. Justice W. T. Henderson, in which he said that in his opinion McIntosh's allegations that he was drugged in Montreal and taken to Homewood was a "fantastic and incredible story." McIntosh charged he was drugged and taken in an unconscious condition to Homewood in 1934.

The suit originally was directed against both the sanitarium and its superintendent, Dr. Harvey Clare. Mr. Justice Henderson dismissed the action against Dr. Clare last week.

The jury had been asked to determine the health of McIntosh at stated periods. He was at Homewood for 27 months.

Whole Manpower Of Nation Will Be Organized

FORT ARTHUR, Ont., Dec. 3—(CP)—Hon. James G. Gardiner, federal minister of agriculture, said in an address to a meeting of district farmers here Tuesday, "Before 12 months have passed the whole manpower of Canada will be organized."

"Something is being done right now about farm labor and while I am not at liberty at this moment to divulge what it is, I will say it is associated with the whole question of manpower . . . we will not be figuring the cost of this war in dollars and cents, but in human lives as is being done in many other countries."

"Farmers in this war as in other wars have had to go through a difficult period in its early stages." Mr. Gardiner said. "Prices during the first part of this war are comparable to a similar period of the last war. Everything but grain was actually lower than in this war. . . . Farmers can never benefit by a war either in the long run or in the short run.

"I wish to join with Mr. Dewan (Hon. P. M. Dewan, Ontario minister of agriculture) in saying that we are hoping for better things next year. It will require all the effort we can muster to keep up with the requests we have from Britain for food."

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The 9,400-ton German surface raider Steiermark scored a direct hit on the 6,830-ton Australian cruiser Sydney in an engagement Nov. 19 and then was set fatally ablaze by a broadside of the sinking warship, German survivors said today.

Two boatloads of men from the crew of the raider, also known as No. 41 and the Kormoran, were landed last week at Carnarvon, West Australia, authorities reported.

(The Australian government announced yesterday the Sydney was missing and presumed lost after an engagement in which she destroyed the Steiermark, which was charged with sinking nine British, British-Allied or neutral ships in the Atlantic and Indian oceans.)

German survivors of the Nov. 19 engagement were said to total 320, some of them wounded. All were made prisoners. The captain of the raider was picked up by an Australian ship, authorities said.

No survivors of the Sydney have been reported.

It was disclosed the German raider flew the Norwegian flag when the Sydney first approached her.

The mystery surrounding the missing Australian cargo steamship Mareeba of 3,472 tons was also solved by an announcement she had been sunk between Ceylon and Sumatra by the Steiermark. Relatives were advised 48 members of the crew were missing.

TELLS OF ENCOUNTER

Prime Minister John Curtin gave this story of the Sydney's sinking after questioning of German prisoners:

"The Sydney was on patrol duty some 300 miles west of Carnarvon when she encountered the Kormoran.

"The initial advantage lay with the German since she was disguised as a merchantman and her identity had to be established before she could be attacked.

"The encounter took place shortly before dusk.

"In the absence of direct evidence, it can only be assumed that some factor prevented the Sydney from making use of her aircraft for reconnaissance from a distance.

"The Sydney closed on the suspect, cleared for action.

BOTH OPEN FIRE

"As soon as the Kormoran was convinced that her identity was known she opened simultaneously with the first salvo from the Sydney.

"She stuck the Sydney on the bridge, damaging the central control and starting a fire.

"The Sydney closed the range, crippling and setting the enemy on fire.

"The enemy abandoned ship and she blew up.

"German survivors saw the Sydney disappear over the horizon with her fire blazing amidships.

"That was the last seen of the cruiser."

More Homes

To the end of November building permits taken out in Edmonton called for the expenditure of $3,355,255, a gain of $738,065 over the last year total of $2,617,190.

A breakdown shows that the biggest kick of this investment went into new houses. During the eleven months 508 permits were taken out for the erection of houses, to cost $1,113,200. This compared with 408 houses built last year at a cost of $794,625; a gain of 100 houses and $318,505 in cost.

Public buildings came next on the list, costing $944,795, against $935,751 last year.

The third item relates to the repair and alteration of existing buildings, for which 992 permits were taken out, compared with 692 last year. The cost of these improvements totals $849,290, against last year's figure of $596,221.

Fifty-three commercial buildings have been put up or are in course of construction, costing $336,610. Last year the buildings erected numbered 33 and cost $202,500.

This year four apartment buildings have been built, at a cost of $62,100; last year two buildings costing $15,800.

The bulk of the investment this year has gone to provide more living accommodation; new houses, alterations and apartment blocks accounting for about two-thirds of the total outlay. This of course is proof of the continuing scarcity of living quarters, due to the steady and fairly rapid growth of population. It shows also that rent control, imminent from the first of the year and now in force, has not checked home-building in Edmonton.

Timoshenko In Action

The Nazis were not merely foiled in their attempt to hold Rostov as a jumping-off place for a drive to capture Russia's oil lines or to invade the Caucasus fields. They have been decisively beaten in that area, driven out of the town and hurried back a hundred miles in something much resembling headlong flight.

They left the city a "junkyard" of wrecked tanks, trucks, mobile guns, and planes, the ground they have twice covered strewn with German dead. This is a war of destruction, not a war of position. The rout does more than free the Rostov area of the enemy; it leaves the Nazis weaker by thousands of picked men and vast numbers of mechanical units. The pipelines were the bait which tempted the Nazi high command to throw a blitzkrieg column clear along the north shore of the Black Sea. It panzer troops have paid for their daring.

They may pay still more heavily if the Russians can maintain the momentum of their counter-attack. At Mariupol, where General Kleist may attempt to rally his retreating forces, these are half way back to the isthmus which connects the Crimean peninsula with the mainland. Should he fail to stop the Russian advance before the isthmus is reached, the Nazi troops in the peninsula will be locked there until ice bridges the sea.

At Rostov the invaders have met their most definite reverse on the eastern front. If the Russians are able to follow up their victory the set-back may be the beginning of a still larger disaster.

Good Team-Play

The rout of Von Kleist's army at Rostov may have been a surprise to Berlin, as it was to newspaper readers everywhere, but there is reason to suppose it did not come as a surprise to Sir Alan Cunningham. Looking backward, the plain inference is that the attack upon the Axis forces in Libya was based on confidence that the Russians could take care of the threat to the Caucasus, and was made in accordance with a pre-arranged plan.

On any other assumption the Libyan attack was a risky venture, for if it failed the army of the Nile would be in no position to help the Russians defend the oil fields to the north. Apparently there was confidence at Cairo, at London and at Moscow, that the Russians wouldn't need any help there; and the Libyan campaign was meant to deal the enemy a second blow at the same time Timochenko launched his offensive in the Rostov area.

A spokesman at Berlin has come as near as could be expected to admitting that the Nazis must abandon hope of making a drive into the Caucasus in the early future. Their eastern forces have been so badly shattered that complete reorganization, reinforcement and rearming will be necessary before another try for the oil supplies can be undertaken. This will be a matter of weeks at best, and may be a matter of months because of the heavy demand for men and munitions to push the fighting on the Moscow sector. It is rather doubtful if another attempt can be made until late winter or spring.

The second front opened up in Libya is known to have drawn considerable Nazi air forces which could otherwise have been used to halt the Russian counter-offensive at Rostov. The almost simultaneous destruction of Rommel's army and that of Von Kleist has all the appearance of carefully planned and well executed team-play between the Russian and British commanders.

We Got A Break

Even war cannot altogether divert attention from the weather, when it is unseasonably mild or particularly severe. While "there is nothing we can do about it," there is a good deal the weather can do—and does do—to us.

People in this part of Canada have just come through one of the mildest Novembers on record, with an average temperature of 30.5 degrees, a dip of only 6 below, and the average amount of sunshine. Practical results are that the building campaign in the city went ahead full blast, farmers round about had a chance to catch up with delayed fall work, and light fuel bills helped the householder to meet the extra expenses and taxes wartime has imposed upon him.

Not to mention the pleasure of being able to saunter along the streets in light overcoats at a time of year when hard frost and swirling snow are not uncommon. Nor the economic and other effects of people staying at home who head for balmier climes when winter comes early. Whatever the future may bring, the pessimistic "old Indian" missed the target completely in November.

The B.C. salmon catch is reported to be the biggest on record, beating that of 1930 by 15,000 cases or more. That will be a welcome gift for people in Britain, since a heavy proportion of the catch is to be sent to them.

The director of aircraft production says that by the end of next year Canada will have 10,000 planes in the air, for training purposes and defence. For a country where up to two years ago a warplane had never been built, this is a showing probably unequalled anywhere in the world.

At Chungking it is officially stated that in Hunan province Japanese airmen dropped food and clothing infected with germs of the bubonic plague, thereby causing the death of many persons and perhaps starting an epidemic. As he is in Washington to get the United States and other powers to give consent to Japan's course of operations, Mr. Saburo Kurusu might properly be asked to clear up this charge. Is the distribution of plague germs included in the list of things the powers are told they must condone?

Looking Backward

From The Bulletin Files

1891—50 Years Ago

D. W. Davis, M.P., has taken steps to prevent the landing from the United States at Vancouver and Victoria of beef cattle without passing the 90 days' quarantine required by law, as has hitherto been the custom. The object is to protect Alberta cattle trade. It is estimated that Victoria and the rest of Vancouver Island import 1,100 head of cattle a month.

J. V. Fleming, of Kamloops, B.C., claims to have discovered a valuable deposit of mica on Canoe river, on the trail from Jasper Pass to Kamloops.

Lord Stanley's military secretary denies the rumor published in London that the Governor-General means to retire in a very short time.

1901—40 Years Ago

Nominations for municipal honors were held in the city hall this afternoon when Mayor Short was elected mayor by acclamation. Messrs. K. A. McLeod, C. Gallagher, E. D. Grierson and P. Heimick were nominated for the vacancies occurring in the council board by the retirement of Messrs. Lee, Blowey and Brown. A. Taylor, M. McCauley and K. A. McLeod were elected by acclamation to the public school board. C. N. Neher, Dr. Roy and J. H. Picard were nominated for the separate school board.

H. V. Shaw has presented a cup for competition among Edmonton curlers.

1911—30 Years Ago

F. W. Peters, vice president of the C.P.R., outlined to The Bulletin the extensive construction program of the company which will be carried out in Edmonton next summer. This includes the building of a station at Ninth street; the completion of the high level bridge, and the construction of the bridges south of Jasper and the subway on that avenue.

Ottawa: Engineer Vollgny reports that the Saskatchewan can be made navigable for light draught vessels from Prince Albert to Le Pas for $1,500,000.

1921—20 Years Ago

Toronto: The Argonauts defeated the Eskimos of Edmonton, 20 to 0, for the rugby championship of Canada.

All the members of the newly organized Greenfield government were returned by acclamation at the by-elections.

San Francisco: The manslaughter case against "Fatty" Arbuckle went to the jury.

Paris: The French ministry of the interior has refused to allow Chas. W. Morse to land in France.

1931—10 Years Ago

Montreal: The general board of chairmen of the running trades sent a telegram to Ottawa saying they will not accept the recommendation of a conciliation board that railway wages be cut 10 per cent.

Paris: New alarm was thrown in League of Nations quarters by news that the Japanese government demands the withdrawal of Chinese troops to territory behind the great wall. Tokyo also demands that the Hauch-Liang's government vacate Chinchow.

London: In equipping infantry battalions with armored machine-gun carriers Canada is taking the lead in modernizing the infantry forces of the empire.

Hitler Wants Japan To Win For Him

We have now reached the climax of the war. It is reflected in extraordinary activities all over the world, and all of these events hang together—the intensification of German war on Russia, the diplomatic activity around Turkey, the withdrawal of General Weygand, the mission of Kurusu, the frantic fighting in Libya and even the recurrent peace talk.

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

Dorothy Thompson

Hitler's intensification of the drive against Moscow and in the Caucasus, his preparation for a new battle for the Mediterranean, both via Spain and North Africa, his intense activities in Libya, are made as much for political as for military reasons, and they are as much directed at Washington and Tokyo as at the immediate military objectives. For the hope that he possibly entertained of digging in for the winter, resting and renewing his forces, is not granted him. He cannot afford it. He is late in his schedule; he knows now that the war will be a long one; and he must immediately strengthen his ties to his allies by military successes, cost what they may.

The Dilemma of Japan

In all this, Japan's position is the least enviable. For Japan, having started on a campaign of conquest for which she was neither politically nor economically strong enough, either must withdraw from the world war, or get out of it altogether, and in either case she stands to lose the worst of anyone. For if she refuses the American offer she will be the first to receive the impact of American intervention. She will, thereby, perform an immense service to Hitler at immense cost to herself.

The gains for the Axis from such intervention will be made in Africa, not in the Pacific. Hitler knows that if Japan enters the war, Japan is lost. But by Japan's altruistic hari-kiri, American material will be deflected to the Far East, rather than to Russia and Britain, and that is all Hitler wants.

Japan, of course, would like Hitler to win the war for Japan — as Mussolini hoped he would win it for Italy. Japan would like to wait, choosing exactly the most favorable moment to enter. Hitler, on the other hand, wants Japan to win the war for him—at the cost of her own defeat. That is what Germany means by an alliance. The United States wants peace with Japan, and the concentration of all energies against Hitler.

This would be on all counts the best course for Japan to follow. Through it she could win peace in the Pacific, the economic collaboration of the United States now and after the war, and neutrality in the gigantic struggle in which, if she enters it, she will be the weakest Axis participant ranged against the strongest anti-Axis power.

The Sure Loser

But Japan has gotten herself into a position in which she simply cannot win. She will lose on any count. She will lose infinitely more by war than by peace. She will lose no matter what the eventual outcome of the European struggle. She will lose if Hitler should win—a terrible situation for Japan to contemplate: the position of being a small and economically weak power, terribly exhausted by war, between the colossus of Germany dominating Europe and western Russia, and the Americas.

Furthermore, no one who knows Germany will believe for an instant that, in case the Nazis should be victorious, Germany would abandon China or the Pacific to Japan—at the risk of prolonged hostilities with the United States. As an Austrian Nazi cynically remarked to me in 1936 in Vienna, "We have a foolproof ideology, under which we can fight anybody—Russia, as a crusade against Bolshevism and Japan as the Yellow Peril."

The worst thing that could possibly happen—in the long run—to Japan would be a Nazified Russia invited by Hitler to direct its attentive eastward to Asia, for the purpose of establishing the white Aryan's sovereignty over the whole globe, together with a collaborationist United States!

A victorious Hitler would not abandon French Indo-China or the Dutch East Indies to Japan. A German-dominated Europe would not relinquish an inch of territory over which any part of Europe had ever held sovereignty. A victorious Germany would throw Japan upon the scrap heap for European and American collaboration.

Something Or Nothing

On the other hand, the defeat of Nazi Germany after a long struggle would end in a far greater unity for the whole of western civilization. And, if Japan has been its enemy in the Pacific, Japan will get no quarter, and Japan will never again be a great naval power. If she leaves China she gives up the plan to be a great land and naval power; but she retains her status as a great naval power among other naval powers. If she goes to war, she gives up the hope of being either a great land or naval power.

United States naval strength will be unweakened—in the long run—if it is necessary to sacrifice a part of the fleet for the exterminaiton of Japanese naval power. For, in the arithmetic of naval strategy, the United States have to keep in the Pacific as strong a force as the Japanese have. And, if war eliminates the Japanese, the United States will be in the Pacific with almost nothing. And, from this great land base the United States can rebuild its losses—something the Japanese cannot do.

So, if she enters the war it's "heads we lose, tails you win," for Japan.

The Japanese must know this. They must know they have the choice of admitting limited defeat in a limited war and setting to work with our aid to rebuild their economy, or pushing into unlimited defeat in unlimited war—for the sake of their own worst enemy, because he is the world's worst enemy. I wonder how the Japanese would like a Hitler stooge in Vladivostok and Washington?

Americans don't like to see defeated nations in any case, and are often ready to help re-establish them—even before defeat. They hope and work for a world in which reason and realism will triumph over force and conquest, and in which ways will be found by which all nations may survive.

Four Queens

BRITISH INDUSTRIES BULLETIN

Beautiful old lace which once belonged to four Queens of England is part of the collection flown by bomber to the United States for the benefit of a British war charity.

The Queen herself presented to it a bridal veil believed to be worth £4,000. Queen Mary sent some lovely pieces, including examples of the lace for which England is renowned and a deep flounce of point de gaze which belonged to Queen Alexandra. There were others for the collection rare Valenciennes, once worn by Queen Charlotte, Venetian point lace that graced the bridal veil of Marie Antoinette, beautiful pieces of point de Flandres, Brussels, Irish, Chantilly, point d'Alencon and England's own Honiton.

Financial Methods Must Keep Pace

The Influence of War May Force Evaluation in Finance, as in Science, Invention and Production

FROM THE FUNDY FISHERMAN, SAINT JOHN, N.B.

Since the turn of the century the world has advanced enormously from a scientific standpoint. We have passed from the days of scarcity into the realm of plenty, for we now have the power and machinery to give us a production not thought at all possible back in the '90's.

It is rather sad to relate that wars have advanced inventions even more than peace, because in war time there is always money for intensive research, and those who give their brains to investigation and research get far more encouragement in war time. The development of the aeroplane is a concrete example.

We speak of projects being financed. What we really mean is that these projects are given a portion of our production, or productive powers. Everything we see around us has been denied some of the productivity of the earth or, in other words, production has supplied the wherewithal, and physical labor has been just as much production to do great things in peace time as war time. However, finance would be required to keep its place in the shafts, as a utility and servant, never in the driver's seat.

It seems strange indeed that whereas all processes of production and industry have advanced and been modernized enormously during the last half century or thereabouts, our financial methods have gone along in about the same old, antiquated way. A half century has seen little change except occasionally where these changes were forced by a suffering public. Had finance modernized along scientific lines, as all other branches of industry have, there would have been no need, for instance, of the Security Exchange Commission in the United States. However, the New Deal brought the S.E.C. into being to curb certain evil and pernicious forms of financing which had taken root in the United States. The S.E.C. has far more than justified its existence. It has saved investors untold millions and no matter what government comes into power across the border, the S.E.C. or a similar organization will be continued as a part of government control over finance.

Here in Canada we may not need an S.E.C., but when we do we should be made to realize that manipulation in finance has cost this country many millions, and if our financial control system does not modernize from within, then we are bound to have laws here similar to the S.E.C.

Interlocking directorates often are not in the interests of the general public. Reorganizing companies in boom times and loading them down with interest-bearing debt has often been detrimental to innocent investors, although promoters may have got off with their pockets filled. The inside men have had the cream were served, and an old-time industry often was ruined by such methods.

In our greatest weakness of our financial system, or at least a part of it, is that when anyone from the outside tries to give constructive suggestions, there is an endeavor by so-called financial minds to hold up these suggestions to ridicule, stating that money and finance must not be interfered with in any way. Some of our financial papers seem to be quite satisfied with the status quo, but the general public is not, and those who have the true interest of our financial system at heart desire to see it improve, progress and modernize, the same as all other branches of industry.

The great industries of today are the ones which accepted the progressive scientific ideas handed to them by the great work that has gone on in investigation and research, and those who close the door of the financial portals to modern and scientific methods will find some time from without are not the real friends of our present system.

A Slav State Under Nazi Rule

FROM THE TORONTO STAR

Like other of the European states, Bulgaria has been handed over to the Nazis by a small group of politicians made powerful by Nazi support. According to Maurice Feldman, in the Christian Science Monitor, Bulgaria's traducer is Dr. Peter Gabrovsky, former minister of interior and leader of "Imro," the Bulgarian terrorist organization. He represents the sentiments of the Bulgarian people as little as does Major Quisling those of Norway.

The fact is, according to available reports, the Bulgarian populace have all along been and are also now strongly pro-Russian, pro-British and anti-German. Despite the terroristic suppression, anti-Nazi sentiments in Bulgaria are being expressed, the letter "V" is being worn and the underground movement is apparently growing.

The Nazis have been courting the Bulgarian opportunists. Bulgaria has been permitted to gain the Macedonian parts of Yugoslavia and Greece, some territory in southern Rumania and a part of Greek Thrace. But Bulgaria is paying for this and will continue to pay tribute to Germany for some time. Bulgaria has already become partially occupied territory and German control of its internal policies is evident. It is reported that three divisions of German troops are stationed in Bulgaria, that a large number of German engineers and technicians are working there, and that the Bulgarian army personnel has "requested" by the German ambassador to retire all officers on the general staff whom he considered "unreliable." In addition, the leaders of the Social-democratic or peasant party have been arrested. Some of them have been executed and others sent to concentration camps. Dr. Gabrovsky is a follower of Streicher, the most bitter of the Nazi anti-semites, and when Gabrovsky took office he conducted a fierce drive against the 45,000 Jews in Bulgaria.

Like other Nazi-controlled countries, Bulgaria is being looted. Upon demand from the German general staff, Bulgaria is providing a considerable amount of food for the German army in Russia. Clothing stocks have been cleared out so that the Bulgarian population has had to be strictly rationed. Through their control of the exchange rate, in fact, the Nazis have a monopoly over Bulgarian import and export trade. On top of it all, because they are Slavs, the Bulgarians are treated by the Nazis as an inferior race.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Letter of Protest

Editor, Bulletin: The following letter has been forwarded to the Hon. Minister of Justice:

"The members of the Women's Auxiliary of the Progress Social Credit Group of Edmonton with Alberta, have instructed me to write you expressing their protest against the resolution recently reported as forwarded to the government of Alberta by the Prime Minister; in which certain statements by the newly-formed Independent Citizens' Association of Alberta are made, that are absolutely untrue and are certainly bordering on defamatory libel as regards Premier Aberhart and some members of his associates.

"Our members object and protest the statement that 'it is the conviction of a majority of the citizens of Alberta, that the policies, propaganda and public statements of Premier Aberhart and his associates are disastrous to the social and economic life of the province and prejudicial to Canada's war effort, and are seriously impairing the unity of Confederation.'

"In connection with the above mentioned clause the members of our group brand the statements as absolutely untrue, and misleading as they have no right to impair the unity of Confederation than any statements made by Premier Aberhart and any of his associates.

"The further statement that we have a Quisling in the province who would aid the Nazis if the occasion arose (referring to Premier Aberhart) is a most foul falsehood, and they feel is the lowest form of despicable attack possible, against any person who has done his utmost to further the interests of the citizens of Alberta, and since the commencement of the war has led the province in a war effort that compares very favorably with any other province in the Dominion of Canada.

"You will note, sir, that although the convention gave unanimous vote of confidence against Premier Aberhart that in no instance has this body offered any constructive criticism, or made any suggestion that could be construed as helpful to our war effort; or for provincial betterment.

"Our members therefore, urge you, sir, as the Hon. Minister of Justice of the Dominion government, to reply to the sponsors of the resolution in question advising the Independent Citizens' Association of Alberta, that their statements are not only misleading and untrue but are also of a nature unworthy and unexpected of supposedly respectable citizens of our province.

Yours truly,
(MRS.) RUTH WHITTINGBACK,
Sec. Progress Woman's Auxiliary.

Control Or Chaos

By DONALD GORDON,
Chairman of the Wartime Price and Trade Board

There is no money magic which can be applied to the needs of wartime finance. There are but three choices—we must pay for our war effort directly by means of taxation, or by borrowing the real savings of the people, or by a process of inflation. The first two methods have been courageously applied and courageously accepted by the Canadian people, but, despite every effort, the fact is that the tremendous speed at which we have built up a war machine and the enormous effort we put into doing so have made it impossible to adjust these policies sufficiently rapidly to recapture the excess purchasing power which the government has released.

When the war began we had large idle resources of labor and materials. So long as these existed our objective was to put them to work and to that end a deliberate expansionist money policy was followed. The inflation brought into being, by public expenditure, a large new purchasing power and this in turn encouraged the rapid employment of all idle resources. So long as more and more goods were being produced there was no serious danger of inflation and rising prices, but we have passed that point. Now we are near the end of our labor power and we are nearing the full utilization of some of our materials. We are producing more goods than ever but more and more of them go to the war, where they cannot be used by the people. We are going to have, we already have far less goods than formerly had the people can use. If the people try to spend as much of their income as formerly, they will bid against one another and against the long purse of the government for the limited supply of goods, in a kind of national auction and prices will go up. They will go up automatically and unevenly, creating grave social injustices and public unrest.

Thus the inflationary tecnique, if you want to call it that—the deliberate creation of more purchasing power—was a useful servant in promoting the production of goods at the beginning of the war, but now, when practically all our productive resources are being used to the full, when the need to the full shortly, the inflationary technique can become a fearful master unless it is curbed. Our problem here is that the public sees a servant which has quickly produced the goods. It is difficult for the public to realize that the same servant and the same process can now produce ruin—hard for the public to realize that the pleasant fellow is becoming dangerous and may run amok.

The essence of the problem of control is properly to time our effort, to select the time when we must reverse the original process and start reducing the demand for goods, now that they are becoming scarce. To clamp down too soon would discourage the utilizatin of idle resources. To clamp down too late, when these resources are fully utilized, would be to risk losing control altogether. We believe the present policy has been well timed. We have reached the turning point. We now need the reverse process. We need control. We have to prevent the excessive demand on a limited supply of goods creating havoc in the price structure.

Glassless "Glasses"

LEEDS YORKSHIRE POST

A substitute for glass in spectacles has just been put on the market, I hear. A plastic material, it is as transparent as glass and almost unbreakable. In these days of blast, its value, particularly for the Service, is obvious.

I learn also that dark-rimmed spectacles are likely to be increasingly in vogue. The government have now, I hear, banned the manufacture of the lighter-colored rims owing to a shortage of the coloring material required.

It is difficult to obtain material for rims of any color, for "celion," the plastic substance from which many of them were made, came from France.

Opening Of Jasper Span To Take Place Wednesday

JASPER—Saturday the final touches were put on the new bridge which spans the Athabasca River 12½ miles east of Jasper. This bridge, the largest one-span wooden bridge in the world, was built in 1923.

Owing to considerable traffic passing over it during the last few years it was becoming unsafe and officials deemed it advisable to replace it with a steel span. The east road from Jasper to Edmonton has been closed since September owing to this work, and the opening of the new bridge will be greatly welcomed both by travellers and the general public.

The official opening will take place on Wednesday at 3 p.m. A cavalcade of cars, organized by the Jasper Chamber of Commerce will leave Jasper at 2 p.m. and proceed to the bridge. The ribbon to the approach at the bridge will be cut by Mayor J. A. Wood, who will declare the bridge officially open.

Owing to short notice, representatives from various organizations in Edmonton who have shown interest in this improvement, are unable to attend the opening.

On Monday evening, the engineer and staff who have been in charge of construction were tendered a complimentary banquet at the Astoria hotel by E. J. Hoff. Also present were representatives of the local Chamber of Commerce.

Crash-Landing Is Made By Bomber

HANNA, Dec. 3—(CP)—Flying in the face of a heavy dust storm an R.C.A.F. twin motored plane with four passengers, crash-landed in a rough field west of Hanna at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, smashing both propellers. None of the occupants was injured.

The plane was flying from North Battleford to Calgary and ran into the storm between Hanna and Drumheller, and was forced to return to Hanna to attempt a landing. Apparently the pilot seeing the rough terrain refused to take a chance on lowering his landing wheels and "pancaked" the plane down.

Members of the local militia are guarding the plane.

Scots Airmen Find It Hard To Get Aboot

SYLVAN LAKE—It was dark at night and about 20 of the Scottish R.A.F. men at Penhold, on invitation, started out to attend a St. Andrew's supper at a home several miles southwest of town.

Without a guide, it is remarkable that the men were only two hours' late. One good Scottish lady in the district, who can still "talk the two talks," asked the driver "Where did ye get tae?"

The driver answered: "We got lost. There's nae bobbies on the r-r-rud and yon signs jist say, 'Stop, take and luster' —no' very much information, ye ken."

The men had a sweet time, all the same.

Bombers Given Welcome Home

WINNIPEG, Dec. 3.—(CP)—Winnipeg Blue Bombers, newly-crowned Dominion football champions, were given a hearty welcome Tuesday by 2,000 spectators who crowded into the railway depot rotunda and lined the street outside.

Shortly after the Bombers, who defeated Ottawa Rough Riders 18-16 in the national final at Toronto Saturday, stepped from the train, they were taken in a parade through Winnipeg's main thoroughfares. Then they were guests at a breakfast given in their honor at a large department store.

Southern Districts Feel Full Force Raging Windstorm

LETHBRIDGE, Dec. 2.—(CP)—A raging southwest wind roared over southern Alberta Tuesday and at its height reached a velocity of 82 miles per hour. Soil drifting was reported from some regions.

The gale for a time threatened to work into a repetition of last Monday's cyclonic gale which reached a velocity of 97 miles an hour. At times yesterday the wind averaged 68 miles per hour for more than an hour but by nightfall had weakened considerably.

Hog Producers Are Warned Of Inferior Type

OTTAWA, Dec. 3.—(CP)—The Canadian bacon board Tuesday night warned farmers against production of off-grade hogs unsuitable for the export market.

"There now are more hogs being marketed unsuitable for export than can be absorbed in the domestic market," the board said in a statement. "If the number of these off-grade hogs is not substantially reduced, this surplus product which can only be sold on the domestic market will ultimately force all hog prices to lower levels."

LOW GRADE HOGS

The board added it would do all possible to see that the highest possible price is paid for hogs of export quality "but no protection can be given to producers who persist in marketing hogs of a type and weight that cannot be exported."

The statement said the board felt the farmer raising export-grade hogs should not be made to suffer because his neighbor was loading the market with an inferior product.

Hon. J. C. Taggart, bacon board chairman, said many protests are being received against increased discounts on low-grade hogs, particularly in western Canada.

He drew attention to the fact that this has been cut in the board's price for grade A and B-1 hogs, and the board's warning of early November that unless there were a reduction in the number of outweight or low-grade hogs, the board would have to impose reduced prices on these grades "or even refuse to buy them at all except on the public market."

PRAIRIE MARKETINGS

For the week ended Nov. 29, 101,821 hogs, not including sows and stags, were marketed in the prairie provinces. The domestic allotment, or the number of hogs which may be distributed for home consumption in these provinces, is 8,216 hogs per week.

Accordingly 93.605 or 92 per cent must be of quality stipulated in the agreement with the British ministry of food.

Under this agreement Canada has undertaken to supply not less than 600,000,000 pounds of bacon by October, 1942. Of the 101,821 hogs marketed last week, 10,674 were graded C, D, E, lights and extra heavies. Not all of this is suitable for export. A total of 9,492 or nine per cent were B-2, C-2, D-2 and lights or carcasses weighing below 135 pounds.

Accommodation For Tourists Is Problem

OTTAWA, Dec. 3—(CP)—Increased tourists accommodation was one of the problems discussed Tuesday at the annual meeting of the Canadian Association of Tourist and Publicity Bureaus. Delegates representing all provinces agreed that arrangements of accommodation in private homes is the most likely solution.

Mr. Justice T. C. Davis associate deputy minister of war services, told the delegates that tourists are receiving consideration in framing of new gasoline regulations and an announcement would be made in the near future.

The tourist men, commending work of customs and immigration inspectors, voiced criticism of a plan of asking United States visitors to fill out a questionnaire on how much money they spent in Canada.

A. McBain, representing the Foreign Exchange Control Board, told the meeting there is no immediate possibility of a change in exchange regulations.

LaGuardia Says U.S. Supplies To End War In Year

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Predicting that the present war will "be over in a year," Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York Tuesday urged United States Senators to establish a new priorities section intended to "filter the business" operating when possible.

Testifying as president of the United Nations Committee of Mayors, LaGuardia told the Senate naval affairs committee that he expected the war to end before next winter "if the munitions goals are met" and saw that supplies were delivered where needed.

Britain Looks For Permanent Post-War Peace

REGINA, Dec. 3—(CP)—When victories of war are won, the victories of peace must be achieved, Rt. Hon. Malcolm MacDonald, British high commissioner to Canada, told a large joint gathering of the Regina Canadian and Women's Canadian Clubs, at a luncheon meeting Tuesday.

First thoughts of British people were concerned with the problem of winning the war itself. Secondly they were considering what practical ways can be devised to insure a permanent peace.

NO ILLUSIONS

People of Great Britain had no illusions that anybody else was going to win the war for them. They realized that only their own efforts would achieve final and ultimate defeat of Hitler and all he stood for.

If the war was to finish with a victory it must be finished by a combination of all the peoples of the world, all must co-operate to overthrow Hitler. It was necessary to have help from great nations, Russia and United States.

The British commissioner said the British were aiming for an ideal and for the future.

SANER LIFE

"They are looking for and fashioning a nobler society," Mr. MacDonald declared. The nations are remarkably united to plan for the purpose of building a better world

In the establishment of new order, "we must return to simplicity, to a saner and sounder principle of living," he declared.

Now in Great Britain provisions were being made for the physical and mental improvement of the children of Great Britain. Great strides were being taken by the government in this direction.

German To Become Canadian Citizen

WHITBY, Ont., Dec. 3.—(CP)—Gottfried Treviranus, one of the leaders of German democracy before the rise of Hitler, was recommended Tuesday for naturalization as a Canadian citizen.

A former cabinet minister in the Bruening administration, he now owns and operates a farm in Ontario county. He has offered his advisory capacity to the Canadian government and his son Hans has offered his services to the Canadian army.

Mr. Treviranus, who was marked by the Gestapo for "elimination" because of his democratic views and anti-Nazi attitude, escaped from Germany in 1934.

New Federation From World War Believes Ford

By DAVID J. WILKIE

DETROIT, Dec. 3. — (AP) — Henry Ford said in an interview here today that out of the war in Europe will come a federation of the world in which "all barriers of nationality will be levelled and the peoples of the world live in common peace and prosperity." It will be a federation in which politics will be definitely discarded; one in which a universal currency, a universal economy and a universal market will prevail, he asserted.

Unless such a federation is established, the 78-year-old industrialist added, the present war will be only a dress rehearsal for another and more terrible conflict.

"The United States is a practical example of federation. We federated because it was the only way peace could be found," Mr. Ford said in finding she cannot live unfederated today," Ford said.

U.S. INFLUENCE

"If the United States puts its influence behind the same type of agreement can be arrived at in Europe. No country should be forced in, but every country soon would see the advantage to be gained by voluntarily coming in. They would need no armies and there would be no war because nations would all be neighbors in the same federation. This in turn would lead to a universal currency and a universal economy and a developed industry that would have all the world for its market."

"The point I make," Ford went on, "is that the time is here to start the federation. The last prophecy along this line was made just 100 years ago by Tennyson. His 'Locksley Hall' was a marvelous forecast of things to come. He forecast the invention of the airplane as an instrument of peace. Then he saw it turned into a terrible tool of war.

"After that he saw the war drums become silent in the parliament of man, the federation of the world. Everything has come in the order he saw it right up to the present time. All that remains to come is the parliament of man, the federation of the world. I think the time is here, and I think America has a big part in it."

U.S. ASKS NOTHING

Ford said that every country that took part in the last war, "asked for something and got it, except the United States. We asked for nothing and got nothing. We are not asking for anything this time. We lend and lease materials, men and ships without thought of repayment. But I think the time has come when we have the right to demand something in return and the only repayment the United States can ask or accept is something that insures peace and prosperity to the world."

Citing the United States as a "practical example of federation," Ford said:

"What we have done the people of Europe can do. The people of Europe are just as good as you will find anywhere. They are no more warlike than we are. But they are divided and kept divided by men who profit by enmities and wars. But if Europe were federated, the people who profit by war will never again get a foothold; they would have nothing to work on."

Looking them Over

By JACK KELLY

ANNOUNCEMENT yesterday by Managing Director P. W. Abbott that the Edmonton Exhibition Association has made definite arrangements with the Air Department which will permit the use of the Exhibition grounds track and grandstand for two race meets next year will be welcome news to the punters in these parts who were looking forward to taking their 1942 racing by remote control via the bookies.

The public will be handled in approximately the same way it was for the Thanksgiving Day football game staged in the grounds through the co-operation of No. 2 Manning Depot.

Parking facilities will be provided south of the Women's Building while a fenced-off lane will lead them to the grandstand. Plenty of stabling room is also promised.

Ottawa should also take the news as very acceptable since the two meets will pay between $30,000 and $35,000 into the Dominion's coffers in the form of pari-mutuel percentages.

In making the announcement, Mr. Abbott said: "While I do not wish to emphasize the fact that this arrangement was made entirely between the Exhibition Association and the Air department, I wish to have it clearly understood that it resulted through the efforts of our association and through no others."

Roaming Around Sportdom

THE line that Bill Klem drew with his foot in the dust at Ebbets Field during the crucial August series between the Dodgers and Cardinals was the last he ever will draw. For years he has used his line drawing as a means of stopping an argument with a player. His technique was to turn away from the player, walk about ten feet and draw a line on the ground. If the player followed him and crossed the line, he was automatically out of the game. Manager Leo Durocher of the Dodgers was the last player to have the line drawn on him. Klem will retire from active service on the diamond now and devote all his time to supervising the National League umpires.

Jack Hurley of Chicago has a determined campaign to get Tom Franklin a title fight with Joe Louis—Franklin being the latest colored fighter to rise above the tin-eared mob. Franklin is 24 years old, has had 23 pro fights and won 25 of them by knockouts. Tony Musto and Abe Simon, two battlers that gave Louis a lot of trouble, were knocked out by Franklin in two and six rounds respectively.

"Joe Louis is the only champion in boxing history allowed to conduct his own private tourney made of hand-picked, panty-waisted stooges. How much longer can they get away with this brazen racket while Tom Franklin, the best fighter in the world today, is ignored and avoided by champion and challengers alike?" roars Hurley.

Last night in Vancouver, Arnold Bertram, manager of bantamweight Kenny Lindsay, announced that he had accepted an offer from Promoter Jack Allen of Toronto to match Lindsay against Lou Salica, world bantam champ, there on Jan. 5. Salica's title will not be at stake.

To lure Lindsay up, Bertram has arranged for him to fight Nash Diaz of Los Angeles in Vancouver tonight. Bertram and Lindsay will then come here to Edmonton to fight an opponent, yet to be named, on December 15. The promotion will be by Syd Beach of Vancouver.

What Is Your Biggest Thrill In All Sportdom?

By HARRY FERGUSON

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(BUP)—A bunch of boys who shall be nameless were whooping it up in a mild sort of way toward the end of the evening when one of them said: "Well, just for the sake of argument, what single thing in sports gives you the biggest thrill? I mean something that really sends the shivers up and down the spine?"

The question couldn't have been bettered asked before a better group, made up entirely of sports writers and pro-fans. Among them they had travelled hundreds of thousands of miles for years to watch all kinds of sports. They had seen the picture from end to end. And they were almost killed in the rush to make their choices.

"You got to give it to college football," one man said. "That's where the thrills are. Now you take a home game that Wisconsin plays. It does something to you to see that big Wisconsin band start the parade with everybody inside their lungs out on that swell marching song, 'On Wisconsin'."

"Where did you go to school?" enquired a cynic.

"Wisconsin," said the gent sheepishly.

CONSIDER THE PROS

"Well," said a gray-haired man, "college football has got plenty to recommend it, all right. By the way, there's nothing wrong with that entrance of the Cadets and Middies at the Army-Navy game. But, I'll take the pros myself. Give me that Tuffy Leemans like he was a couple of years ago in a broken field with tacklers sliding off of him and him going hell for leather. Or Sammy Baugh, six points behind, and throwing those bullet passes at night falls. The pros got 'em for my money."

Another indignant gentleman demanded the floor. "Take all the football teams in the country, college and pro, and throw 'em out that window over there. Here's the one thing will give me a kick as long as I live. They're parading to the post for the Kentucky Derby and all of a sudden the band starts giving out with 'My Old Kentucky Home.' And after the first few bars the crowd stands up and starts humming. A kind of soft and some of the gals are singing it. Brother, you can't match it. A wooden Indian would get a belt out of that."

WORLD SERIES THRILL

"Seems like we got this thing all tangled up with bands and music but the truth of it is that once a year I get a shivery spine out of the world series. It's about five minutes before the start of the first game when the band plays the Star Spangled Banner. There are a couple of pitchers—some of 'em usually Red Ruffing of the Yankees—" standing out there facing the flag with their caps off. And the umpires are at attention and the rest of the players are lined up bareheaded in front of the dugouts. You can hear a pin drop then. I know 'cause I dropped one a couple of years ago."

A little fellow interrupted: "You don't have to have a band to give me a belt. What's wrong with the last round of a National Open golf championship when a guy is coming up the stretch needing par on the last four holes to tie or win. Like Gene Sarazen did out at Cleveland a while back. Remember when he came up to the green and I think it was the 15th—and decided to down a 40-foot putt? Gene swaggered up to that putt with that funny little wink of his and didn't even bother to line it up. He just hit it. Maybe it took four or five seconds for that ball to get across the green and plunk into the cup. It's a good thing it wasn't a longer time because everybody, me included, was holding his breath and would all have been dead."

WHEN THE CHIPS ARE DOWN

The last man spoke: "It's an outdoor fight. You got about 50,000 people there sitting in the darkness and the cigarettes look like lightning bugs. The champ sits in his corner, dead panned as usual and the challenger is scraping his feet in the resin. Harry Balogh, the announcer, walks to the microphone and says, 'This is the feature attraction, 15 rounds for the heavyweight championship of the world. Coming from Pittsburgh, Pa., weighing 175½, wearing black trunks, the very worthy challenger, Billy Conn. From Detroit, Mich., weighing 205, wearing purple trunks, the world's heavyweight champion, Joe Louis'.

"They get the seconds out of the ring and the two guys stand there for a couple of seconds, waiting for the bell, staring at each other and thinking the Lord knows what. How you going to keep from getting a belt out of that?

That last guy talking was me.

No Fooling, This Is The Season's Payoff!

When Syracuse University came up this fall with a centre who faced his own backfield, football tacticians sat up. Now comes little Worthington College of Minnesota with a formation so dippy that the tacticians are still rubbing their eyes. It is shown in the above picture—seven men on the line of scrimmage, three backs with their backs to the enemy and the quarter facing them. This super-dooper has won five out of six starts for inventive Coach Lem Herting.

BOYS FROM SYRACUSE WERE PIKERS

Little College Comes Up With Wackiest Formation Of Season

By TED RANDOLPH

WORTHINGTON, Minn., Dec. 3.—(NEA)—The boys from Syracuse may have put on the whackiest major league production of the year with their publicized Y formation featuring the bashful center, but for a real four-star extravaganza we give you "Turned Around Backs," staged and directed by Worthington Junior College, Lem Herting, prop.

Rehearsals in 1941 featured two-ball-carriers lined up with their backs to the linemen. But Lem is a Billy Rose at heart. In 1942, Worthington will be terrif, collor and super-doop, as they say in Hollywood.

Three backs will turn away from it all.

WORTHINGTON BACKS DO AS THEY PLEASE

A new rule this year permitted handing of the ball forward in the backfield. That's all Lem Herting needed. He developed a revolutionary style of play and a spectacular offense.

Worthington backed into five victories in six starts, a second Southwest Minnesota Conference title.

Herting's legerdemain gives any of the four backs the option of running either end or through any hole in the line.

Linemen have definite assignments on every play. Backs do not. They have alternatives which they can exercise on practically every play.

The ball is snapped to a back facing the line. He passes forward to any of the "turned around backs" who are in formation behind the right side of the line. They can fake as if they have the ball, fake a pass, go out for a possible lateral or run interference.

For the most part, the boys themselves decide what they are going to do. This injects a bit of democracy into football. It is not recommended for teams where several different languages are spoken. Herting claims he's giving the game back to the players and engendering enthusiasm.

Off hand, it might seem that only a giant intellect of the Rhodes scholar vintage would be able to cope with such a complicated problem. Herting denies this, says his offense is easy to learn.

He had only two reserves back from his 1940 squad this year, yet his only defeat was by the margin of a safety.

The offense provides so many variations, that it will be possible for the team to have 150 running plays and 50 pass plays next year, he says.

HERTING TUTORED MANDERS BROTHERS

A South Dakota graduate, Herting first coached Milbank High School in his home state, where he tutored the Manders boys of professional fame.

His football teams have lost only one game in 13 starts, against strong southern Minnesota and northern Iowa competition.

Herting also coaches basketball but denies he plans to use an acrobatic midget who will do a trapeze act on the shoulders of the other four men and manipulate the ball under the basket.

"Much too radical," insists Lem Herting.

Varsity Hockey Billed To Start Next Wednesday

Next Wednesday night, at about 7 p.m., providing there's ice, Stan Mober will start his University of Alberta Interfaculty Hockey "A" League on its 24-game way. Four teams, Engineers, Arts, Med-Pharm-Dents, and Ag-Comm-Law, will play in the league with double-header games starting Wednesday, Dec. 10 and ending on Saturday, Feb. 21.

Bottom team in the league standing at the end of the schedule will be dropped from play-off plans, with the second and third place clubs playing a two-game series starting Feb. 25. Winner of this elimination round will meet the top team in a three-game final, starting March 4.

Featuring of this year's league will be the "valuable players" award, given by Dr. J. S. Shoemaker, and the "high scorer" prize to be donated by Henry Singer, clothier.

An innovation to hockey leagues in these parts will be the appointment of a league goalie, who will be ready to substitute for any team should the regular goalkeeper be unable for any valid reason to take his place in the nets.

The league will follow generally the 1941-42 rules of the National Hockey league. No club may dress more than 12 players for each game, and in the case of clubs with a "B" league affiliate no more than 12 players may be signed.

Following the "major-minor" leagues' precedent, teams in the "A" league may call up members in their "B" league affiliate when it is desired to do so. Members of the "A" team may be sent down to the "B" league only once. No club may sign a player after February 1, nd to be eligible to participate in the play-offs, a player must have played in at least two scheduled games for the team with which he will play in the play-offs.

Michael Tanne Hockey President

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

TWO HILLS, Dec. 3—The strong Two Hills hockey club, is getting into shape for the season. The rink is completed, and the team is working out.

President of the club is Michael Tanne, honorary president is John Kolisnik, and vice president is Richard Gelela; secretary treasurer is Nick Myskiw.

Third term ice-maker is Albert Gartke. Indications show that the club will go big guns again this this season.

Iglehart Rated Best In U.S. Polo

NEW YORK, Dec. 3—(CP)—Polo was left with Stewart Iglehart as the only 10-goal player in the world the United States Polo association announced the list of new handicaps to govern play during the coming year.

Cecil Smith, the hard-riding Texan who with Iglehart was the only active 10-goal player in the world this year, was dropped to a nine-goal rating. Mike Phippe, who led the Gulfstream four to the open championship and victory in the Waterbury Cup competition, was boosted from eight to nine goals while Eddy Gerry and Winston Guest remained at the nine-goal figure.

Appointments no one could say what will be done about coaches although it was understood Ott would probably keep Adolf Loque of the present staff at least.

Meanwhile Cleveland Indians announced that Manager Lou Boudreau's new coaches would be Burt Shotton, manager of the Columbus (O.) Red Birds, and Oscar Melillo, a Cleveland coach under Manager Oscar Vitt.

Mel Ott To Manage Giants As Terry Takes Over Farms

By JUDSON BAILEY

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 3.—(AP)—New York Giants unexpectedly moved Bill Terry into the front office Tuesday and named Mel Ott playing manager in a surprise shift calculated to restore the decrepit Giants to a dominant position in the National League.

Terry was made general manager of the farm system and scouting staff and given general advisory powers in the direction of the club while Ott, 32-year-old righthander, was rewarded for 16 years of faithful playing service by giving him charge of the team on the field.

BILL AVAILABLE

President Horace Stoneham said Terry will be available to help Ott if the quiet little veteran wants any, but declared direction of the ball club now is up to Ott.

Both Terry and Ott were given two-year contracts. Terry, who had managed the Giants since succeeding John McGraw in the middle of the 1932 season, was believed to have taken a cut in salary from $42,500 to about $30,000 in order to persuade Stoneham to create the job which Terry long had coveted. Terry's former contract which had another year to run was cancelled. Ott was believed to have been given a salary of about $25,000.

DELIGHTED FOR ONCE

"I'm delighted by the new setup and I think this will enable us to make the Giants a strong club again," Terry said. "This is the work I have been wanting to do and I feel sure that I can give Mel some ball players that will be a great deal better than what I have had to work with recently."

Red Deer Opener Likely Tomorrow

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., Dec. 3.—(CP)—Lethbridge Maple Leafs, last year's western Canada champions, today hold a commanding lead in the A.B.S. Senior Hockey League and are the only squad in the five-team circuit to boast an unbeaten record so far.

Last night Leafs handed Trail Smoke Eaters their second successive defeat in three starts by scoring a 5-1 win here. Last Saturday night Calgary Stampeders trounced the travelers 8-0 and tonight the Cowboys play another match with the one-time world amateur titalists.

Lethbridge and Trail played to a 7-7 overtime tie in the British Columbians' first of a scheduled six-game road trip here Nov. 28.

Smokies were scheduled to play Red Deer Buffalos at the Central Alberta city Saturday night but the game was cancelled because of unsuitable ice conditions. If ice is available they will, however, play at Red Deer tomorrow night and in order to complete their six-game schedule may be asked to stay over and play the last match either at Red Deer or Calgary this Saturday.

Leafs, besides tieing and winning one from Trail, have the same record against Stampeders.

DIVIDE GOALS

The Leafs spread their goals out in last night's contest with Dick Gray, Walter Rimstad, Don Cully, Mel Lunde and Cam Burke netting. Mike Buskna got the lone Trail marker. Each team tallied once in the opening period but there was no scoring in the middle frame. Leafs broke loose with a four-goal attack in the final period to pinch the game.

Leafs dominated play throughout the first period and only the remarkable goal-tending of Duke Scodellaro, veteran netminder with Trail, saved the visitors from ending the frame on the losing end of the count.

Lethbridge showed a big edge in play throughout the first frame but it was not until midway through that Gray took a short pass from Culley to whip the puck behind Scodellaro. Buskna evened the count late in the session when he drove the rubber past Goalie Andy Young after a three-way passing attack with Ab Cronie and Maurice Pratt.

TRIES PENALTY SHOT

Trail fans were given their first view of a major penalty shot late in the second when Alex Pringle of Leafs was tripped by Bunt Robertson as he was racing in for a shot on goal. Scodellaro saved however when he slopped the puck with his pads.

The Trail goalie kicked out attempts repeatedly in the session as Leaf forwards crashed through Smokies' defence line to shoot on goal.

Rimstad soloed for the second Leaf goal shortly after the third stanza got away and from then on Leafs dominated play, crashing through for three more markers before the bell.

Nettlow Decision Over Maxie Berger Cause Of Uproar

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(CP)—Al Nettlow, hard punching boatswain's mate from the United States navy, gained a disputed decision over Montreal's Maxie Berger in eight gruelling rounds at the Bronx Coliseum Tuesday night before 7,500 fans. The Jacksonville, Fla., sailor weighed 146½, Berger 145¾.

The decision brought an uproar from the crowd who booed and stamped for a full two minutes at the split verdict. Referee Johnny Mario and Judge Nick Gamboli voted for Nettlow while the other judge, William MacPartland, called it a draw. Many of the ringsiders had given Berger as many as six rounds.

Making his first start in New York since last May, Berger took the offensive from the start, opening a bad cut under Nettlow's left eye in the third round. But Berger had to take plenty of punches to land one and that probably cost him the fight. There were no knock downs.

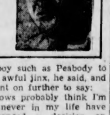
Bill Cunningham's Column



IT MAY NOT BE SCIENTIFIC, BUT JINX IS STILL A JINX.

BOSTON, Dec. 3.—I, myself, and, I mean, the writer am not superstitious, personally. Not much, anyhow. At least not too much. I wouldn't walk under a ladder, nor be the 13th going into an airplane, nor toss my hat on a bed, nor do quite a lot of those things.

But if you want a guy who is really superstitious, I give you Mr. Richard Cresson Harlow, the distinguished football coach of Harvard. It's a funny thing, too. Harlow is big and bald and hard to bother. Furthermore he's a ranking scientist, being a profound authority, among other things in the field of botany, which brings him close to nature and would seem to tend to persuade him that plants grow from seeds and events grow from causes, et cetera.

But, no sir! No jerk-britches shortstop in the Kitty League is half as scairt of jinxes and hoodoos as this eminent builder of character, and baseball players are supposed to be the chief 'fraid cats in that department.

But this is exactly what happened, and you can write your own ticket. Harvard had an All-America football player this semester for the first time, almost, since they planted the Washington elm in Cambridge. His name was Endicott (Chub) Peabody End, as you may have heard, and news about him began to get red hot near the end of the schedule just as Harvard was steaming up full pressure for their final and traditional battle with Yale.

CAMERA SNAPPING JINX ARRIVES ON SCHEDULE

IT was the Tuesday before the Yale game when a photographer showed up at Harvard practice and said he'd been commissioned by a national magazine—the famous big one with all the pictures, or should I just come right out and say Life?—to take a picture of Peabody for the All America team they were going to run pretty shortly.

Harlow said not by a dang sight.

I don't know where he got his statistics but he said a positive jinx seemed to hound every athlete fortunate enough to be featured heavily in that particular publication, and likewise The Saturday Evening Post. But, so far as Life went, said he, they had gone to town on 5 different athletes and all but Joe Louis had promptly got knocked for a loop.

He couldn't subject a fine and deserving boy such as Peabody to that sort of awful jinx, he said, and then he went on further to say:

"You fellows probably think I'm crazy, but never in my life have I ever changed a decision on something such as this that something terrible didn't happen. It all dates to something that happened when I was coaching at Penn State and I've never forgotten it. I had a fine football player there and they wanted me to let him out of spring practice one time so he could run in a track meet.

"I refused, but they begged, and finally I reconsidered. The boy entered the meet, ran his race and won it, and was killed by a bolt of lightning just as he crossed the finish line."

So Harlow wouldn't let the photographer take the photograph, and the snapshooter reported back to his office. The editors called Bill Bingham, Harvard Director of Athletics, and explained that they had to have Peabody's picture or their spread would be no good. They won Bingham over and he persuaded Harlow to change his mind, although Harlow still said he wasn't very happy about it, and resolutely feared the worst.

YOU GUESSED IT, HE GOT IT:

BUT now it was the next day, which was the Wednesday before the Yale game, and practice was stopped while Peabody posed, or, at least Peabody's part of it was stopped while he went through his paces for the shutterbugger in a far corner of the Cantabridgian corral.

Finally it was over and the powerful young Blue Blood came galloping back to rejoin the scrimmage in which he'd gloried all year, and in which he'd never even been bruised.

On the very first play thereafter, he got it!

Yep, he went down under a pile, and he didn't get up!

It was his leg. They had to help him out and into the Infirmary. It wasn't a break, but a terrific bruise that wound up as a double charley horse. They baked it Thursday and Friday and almost up to game time Saturday. He limped through the Yale game at half speed, playing well but not starring.

"I told you," said Harlow.

What's the verdict, Dr. Watson?

Canadiens Again Hit By Injuries

MONTREAL, Dec. 3.—(CP)—The names of Murph Chamberlain and Pete Morin were added to the roster of injured Canadiens last night, after the club's week-end tilts with Boston Bruins.

Pete Morin, recently brought up from amateur ranks, suffered a shoulder injury Saturday night and will probably be out of the game for a week or 10 days. Chamberlain also had his shoulder injured when he was boarded by Johnny Crawford Sunday night and will be out of action for 10 days or more days.

Tony Demers is still in hospital with a broken leg suffered in an automobile accident. Elmer Lach is nursing a broken arm, but is doing a little skating. Lach may go home until he is ready to re-enter competition.

Conny Smythe To Sell Off Horses

TORONTO, Dec. 3.—(CP)—Major Conny Smythe, officer commanding the 30th Battery in training here, said Tuesday he would disband his racing stable and drop out of racing for duration of the war due to heavy pressure of active service duties. Former managing director of Maple Leaf Gardens, his leave of absence from that position for the duration was announced last week.

Minor Ball Head Intends To Resign

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Dec. 3—(AP)—George Trautman, president of the American Baseball Association and chairman of the executive committee of the minor leagues, disclosed Tuesday he did not intend to stand for re-election on the committee post. He said he felt his six years' service on the committee was ample and that the job should be turned over to someone else.

His successor apparently was to be Judge Emil Shaughnessy, president of the International League, or W. C. Tuttle, president of the Pacific Coast League. Presidents Crawford Sunday night and will be out of action for 10 days or more days.

Tony Demers is still in hospital with a broken leg suffered in an automobile accident. Elmer Lach is nursing a broken arm, but is doing a little skating. Lach may go home until he is ready to re-enter competition.

EXPLANATION OF TODAY'S CARTOON

A BEST SELLER IN SPITE OF 20 PUBLISHERS: "Robinson Crusoe," a best seller for 220 years, and probably for all time to come, was written by Daniel Defoe, who founded his tale upon the experiences of Alexander Selkirk, a castaway on the lone island of Juan Fernandez. The manuscript of "Robinson Crusoe" was rejected by a score of book publishers who failed to foresee the immense popularity of the work. William Taylor, who finally purchased the book, made a considerable fortune by it.

Hutson Of Packers Sets Seven Pro Grid Records

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—(BUP)—The National Professional Football League tore up its record book today and inserted the name of Don Hutson, veteran Green Bay end, in seven places. Although the Chicago Bears have smashed team records in wholesale fashion this year, Hutson made the greatest individual assault on the record book. His 20 points against Washington on Sunday climaxed the onslaught.

The league reported the former Alabama star had compiled these records in his seven seasons with the Packers:

1. Total points for one season—95. Jack Manders of the Bears held the former record of 79.

2. Total points for his career—386. Manders's old record was 268.

3. Touchdown passes caught in one season—12. Andy Farkas of Washington set the old record of 11 in 1939.

4. Number of passes caught in one season—57.

5. Number of passes caught in career—260.

6. Catching three touchdown passes in single game—four times. Three players have done it once.

7. Yards gained on passes in career—6,163.

15 PAYOFF PITCHES

Cecil Isbell, the other half of the Packers' passing combination, has tossed 15 touchdown passes this season.

By completing 15 passes in 25 attempts against Washington, the Packers established a new season's efficiency record for more than 250 attempts. The Packers completed 133 passes in 251 attempts for a mark of 52.98 per cent. Cleveland set the old record of 50.1 in 1939.

The Chicago Bears, who already have broken seven team records this year, moved a step closer to the eighth by gaining 323 yards against Philadelphia. The Bears need gain only 99 yards in their season windup against the Cardinals to break their own 1939 record of 3,988.

Green Bay was second in yards gained for the season with 3,325.

BEST DEFENCE

The New York Giants had the best defence record, holding their 1941 opponents to a total of 2,111 yards. Washington was second with 2,168.

Cleveland was second to Green Bay in pass completions with 122 in 285 attempts, but Washington claimed the best efficiency record with 117 completions in 226 attempts.

West Seeking Three Changes In Grid Rules

TORONTO, Dec. 3.—(CP)—Hal Walker, writing in the Globe and Mail today, said that Western Canada delegates plan to submit three rule changes to the Canadian Rugby Union annual meeting at Toronto next February.

Walker said that the delegates will ask that three separate penalties be imposed for charging of a kicker and that they are itemized thusly:

(A)—If a player as much as touches a kicker on punt formation, a penalty of five yards be assessed against his team; (B)—for "roughing" a kicker a penalty of 15 yards be levied against the offending side; (C)—Match penalty for extraordinary roughness against the kicker.

"They will also ask, The Globe and Mail was told, to have the rulemakers eliminate the 10-yard penalty for two successive incomplete forward passes. The third change they seek deals with kicks to the deadline. Their resolution will ask that no point be allowed for a kick unless the ball bounces first in the end zone or is in such a position for a defending player to have a chance to play it."

Walker quoted an unnamed western spokesman as saying that: "I think it's sane to say we'll have football next year even if on a little less pretentious scale—if Regina loses the players they expect to, they'll hardly be able to operate but I look for Winnipeg and Vancouver to field teams."

The spokesman also was quoted as saying "What we have in mind is for Bombers and Vancouver to play separate exhibition games through the regular season against American college teams. Then, with the exhibition season concluded, they would meet in a home-and-home total-points series for the Western Canada championship and the right to play with the east."

Wiseman Tallies Winning Marker

BOSTON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—After trailing for more than 51 minutes, Boston Bruins uncorked a terrific closing drive last night to gain a 3-1 overtime victory over Toronto Maple Leafs and undisputed possession of top spot in the National Hockey League. An overflow crowd of 15,000 watched the game.

The short-handed Maple Leafs shared the top rung with the Bruins at the outset, scored early in the first period and then checked the determined Boston attack until Dutch Hiller nullified Bingo Kampman's opening tally with less than nine minutes to go.

Although both teams, in action for the third time in four nights, were tiring, the Bruins managed to continue their furious efforts until they pulled the victory out of the fire.

WISEMAN WINS IT

Little Eddie Wiseman registered the winning goal, during the seventh minute of the overtime, after Bill Cowley had lured Goalie Turk Broda out of position, and 34 seconds later Red Hamill insured the Bruins' uphill triumph by rapping in a 20-foot shot after rushing with Art Jackson and Bobby Bauer.

That little right winger, who wound up with two assists, was called upon to play on all three lines the last 30 minutes of play, after Roy Conacher was forced out of action with a pulled groin muscle.

The Bruins fired a total of 35 shots, most of them from close range before Hiller managed to break Goalie Broda for the first time. He was subjected to much heavier fire during the overtime, for the Bruins blasted him with 13 more drives during those 10 furious minutes.

Cornwall Players Lead Quebec Loop

MONTREAL, Dec. 3.—(CP)—The official list of scoring leaders of the Quebec Senior Hockey League continues to throw out a pretty good idea of why Cornwall Flyers are tied for top spot in the standings.

Cornwall placed five men in the list of 10 leaders issued last night, including the one-two-three positions. Only the first 10 names were released by league officials.

George Imlach led the pack with 19 points, with Steven Latoski second with 16 and Ted Saunders third with 13. First chance a non-Cornwall player had to show his nose in the list was in fourth spot, held jointly by Jack Riley of Pats and Albert Lemay of Ottawa with 12 points each, one ahead of a four way split for the next position.

Montreal and Toronto

MONTREAL, Dec. 3.—(CP)—Traders picked on a group of leaders in today's stock market session and most issues were higher. Noranda was a stronger spot, gaining more than a point but International Nickel was backward. International Petroleum advanced and Imperial receded.

Archangel Port Believed Likely To Close Dec. 31

LONDON, Dec. 3.—(CP)—Dec. 31 was designated today as the deadline for British women to complete knitting for Russian troops.

"We were not told why, but I think we can take it that the Port of Archangel will be frozen up by that time," said Admiral Sir Sydney Fremantle, retired, chairman of the Navy League's Seafarers' Comforts Supply.

(Archangel is the port through which British aid going to Russia via the far northern route has been flowing.)

It had been understood previously, however, that the Russians would seek to keep the port open all winter with ice-breakers.

COMMON SENSE POLICY IS URGED HERE

City Liberals Support Move For Strong, Active Party

Officials At City Liberal Parley

J. BOYD McBRIDE, K.C.

HUGH MONTGOMERY

J. Boyd McBride, K.C., acting president of the Edmonton Provincial Liberal Association, who was chairman of a meeting of the association held in the I.O.O.F. hall, 103 street, Tuesday night; and Hugh Montgomery, Wetaskiwin, newly-elected president of the Alberta Liberal Association, who addressed the gathering, stating that he was determined to carry out the mandate for "Liberalism ahead". This stand was unanimously endorsed at the meeting of the general council of the Alberta Liberal Association in Calgary on September 27.

Organization Opposed To Political Unity Montgomery Declares

Pronouncing his determination to carry out the general council's mandate to make the Liberal party in Alberta a strong and active force with a common sense policy that will return the party to power in the next election, Hugh J. Montgomery, Wetaskiwin, president of the Alberta Provincial Liberal association addressed a meeting of Edmonton Liberals in the I.O.O.F. hall, 103 street, Tuesday night.

The meeting, called by J. Boyd McBride, K.C., acting president of the Edmonton Provincial Liberal Association, was well attended by many men and ladies prominent in Liberal circles in the city. Mr. McBride presided and Charles H. Grant, K.C., was secretary.

On the platform, besides the chairman and secretary, were Hugh Montgomery, Wetaskiwin, president of the Alberta Provincial Liberal Association; Hugh John Macdonald, K.C., M.L.A.; Alderman Mrs. J. A. Clarke, president of the Alberta Provincial Women's Liberal Association; Pat O'Connor, president of the East Edmonton Federal Liberal Association, and Mrs. J. B. Stewart, president of the Edmonton Provincial Women's Liberal Association.

THROUGH WITH UNITY

Mr. Montgomery brought with him the assurance that the Liberals in Alberta are through once and for all time with the idea of political unity and are prepared to go on by themselves.

He outlined the stand of the party during the elections in 1940 when they agreed to co-operate as far as possible in minimizing the number of candidates running against the Social Credit candidates.

STAND FOR LIBERALISM

Reports of Edmonton delegates who attended the meeting of the Provincial Liberal general council in Calgary on September 27, were heard. Neil D. Maclean, K.C., expressed the opinion of all the delegates when he stated that the meeting was unanimous in its approval of the stand that the Liberal party begin immediately to organize in every constituency in the province.

He stated that a resolution asking for co-operation with the Unity group did not even have a seconder.

Several speakers expressed their gratitude at the firm stand for Liberalism that Hugh J. Macdonald and J. J. Bowlen took at the Calgary meeting and at the meeting of the Independents' group in the Macdonald hotel in November. Mr. Bowlen is M.L.A. for Calgary.

The meeting stood in brief silence in tribute to Hon. Ernest Lapointe, late minister of justice, and a resolution requesting that a letter of condolence be forwarded to Mrs. Lapointe, was passed.

DEFENDS KING POLICY

An impression that the federal Liberal members did not wish to express openly their stand against co-operation with the unity movement brought criticism from Neil D. Maclean and from Edward C. Fisher.

Robt. C. Bisset, Edmonton Flier, Listed Missing

Member of first-formed Canadian bomber squadron of the Royal Air Force, Squadron Leader Robert Clare Bisset, D.F.C., 28, is reported "missing after air operations" according to a cable received Tuesday by his parents, Ald. A. Bisset and Mrs. Bisset, 11133 81 avenue.

Only Monday the British air ministry reported that the squadron to which Sqdn. Ldr. Bisset belonged had made 38 operational trips to raid objectives in Germany in the past four months. Bisset was reported as declaring a Sunday night raid on Stettin was "a tame affair"

OUTSTANDING SERVICE

Holder of the Distinguished Flying Cross for outstanding service in action against the enemy, the young squadron leader has been in action in bomber command since the campaign against Germany opened with what airmen called the "airmail," showering leaflets on Nazi cities.

The cable received by Sqdn. Ldr. Bisset's parents stated that investigations would be made through the International Red Cross and any further information obtained would be communicated to them.

The squadron in which Bisset has operated has, in the past four months, bombed targets in Berlin, Turin, Essen, Osiend, Hamburg, Kiel, Cologne, Brest, Karlsruhe, Ludwigshafen, Duisburg, Dortmund, Canabruck, Aachen, Hanover, Frankfurt, Magdeburg, Stettin, Nuremburg, Wilhelmshaven and many other points.

Sqdn. Ldr Bisset led the attack Sunday night on Stettin.

After attending King Edward and Strathcona high school, "Clare" Bisset, as he was known to schoolmates, went north to prospect for radium. In 1936 he left the north and went to England, where he joined the R.A.F., receiving rapid advancement in the force.

HIS "BEST NIGHT"

Bombing raids have been described as work of at least equal danger to fighter and pursuit action. Bomber crews must often hover over areas under attack for an hour or more, dodging searchlight beams and anti-aircraft fire, often going down to altitudes of less than 1,000 feet to make sure of laying the bombs on the target.

Recent attacks in which Bisset has taken part have been designed to cripple supply routes for the Nazi war machine against Russia, according to the air ministry.

The squadron leader said Monday, "My best night was a long trip to bomb an oil refinery at Leipzig. We ran through the flak (anti-aircraft) three times coming down to 1,000 feet. We dropped our stuff and then went down and machine-gunned the place. We left great fires burning."

Citizen Shivers While Overcoat Warms Fire Plug

One Edmontonian was surely feeling the icy blast of wintry winds on Wednesday, while his overcoat was "warming" a fire plug at the corner of Jasper avenue and 99 street.

The garment of greenish tone marked with four-inch light yellow checks, was first observed Tuesday afternoon. Later, wet with snow and half frozen, it was removed to The Bulletin office, where it now awaits its owner.

Staggering Of Working Hours Is Plan To Help Tram System

Edmonton's Chamber of Commerce is being asked by city commissioners to give consideration to ways and means of staggering the hours of attendance at business offices to meet an anticipated street railway traffic problem when the severe winter weather sets in.

A letter requesting the Chamber to take this matter under advisement has been forwarded to Secretary John Blue, and it is anticipated that the communication will come before the Chamber's executive at its next meeting.

Commissioner R. J. Gibb Wednesday appealed to housewives to so arrange their shopping hours to get home before 5 p.m., thus relieving the congestion on street cars for the afternoon rush hours.

UNDER DISCUSSION

The anticipated traffic problem has been under discussion by city commissioners and Thomas Ferrier, street railway superintendent, but no plan to meet it has yet been devised. Any plan that may be devised must have the whole-hearted support of the public to be successful, Commissioner Gibb stated.

He said that the city hall staffs attendance would be staggered if there was general acceptance of the staggering of hours plan.

Another plan to relieve the morning congestion which has been discussed was the setting back of school hours. This would relieve pressure of the transportation system in the morning, but would intensify the pressure during the afternoon rush hours.

Transportation Groups Join In Conserving Gas

Railway and express companies together with transportation groups in Edmonton will take part in a drive underway in other cities in Canada to conserve gasoline and oil consumption, it was reported Tuesday.

The conservation campaign is being instituted at the request of G. R. Cottrelle, oil controller, and companies here have expressed their willingness to co-operate to the fullest extent.

The saving of fuel will be made in many ways. Deliveries in certain districts will be grouped. Drivers will "turn off their motors when the truck is not in use, and "idling" of motors will be cut to a minimum.

Drives to save gasoline is co-ordinated with the Christmas rush on deliveries and buying. Shoppers are requested to ask for a minimum of deliveries and when possible to carry home their parcels.

Some Bakers Checked For Short Weight

Check-up on bakers selling short weight bread in Edmonton will be made through the city's license department, Mayor John W. Fry and city commissioners stated Wednesday. Mayor Fry stated that bakers selling short-weight bread in future would be prosecuted.

This drive on short-weight bread results from a report made by Roy J. Foster, license department inspector, of results of bread-weighing carried out at 22 city bakeries on November 24 last. Bread from several bakeries was found to be under the standard weight set by the provincial act governing bread sales in Alberta, it was reported.

ACT'S REQUIREMENTS

The report points out that some of the weighing was done after the bread had been out of the ovens for several hours, but even then, in some cases, the bread weighed lighter than it should to meet the provincial act's requirements.

Standard weights for bread set by this act calls for a 20-ounce loaf in standard white and whole-wheat loaves, an 18-ounce loaf in Dutch or fancy bread, and a 16-ounce loaf in raisin bread.

The weight survey showed many bakeries supplying loaves over the standard weight, and small whole loaves were below. In most cases, were approximately one-half to three-quarters of an ounce under the standard weight.

Sgt. Edward Borden Stephenson, R.C.A.F., whose father, W. J. Stephenson, lives at Red Deer, has been killed on active service overseas, according to a casualty list issued at Ottawa Wednesday.

New Minister Christ Church

Rev. E. S. Ottley of Streetsville, Ont., has accepted the ministry of Christ church here, the Anglican synod office has announced.

The new minister will succeed Rev. Canon Godfrey P. Gower, serving now as chaplain with the R.C.A.F. He is expected to arrive here January 15. Acting minister at the present time is Rev. S. G. West of Mirror.

The Inquiring Reporter

THE QUESTION

The Japanese-American "discussions" are going none too well. It is revealed in official communiques. Do you think there will be war between the U.S.A. and Japan before long?

THE ANSWERS

MRS. WINNIFRED McLEAR, housewife: I think Japan will back down, particularly with the Germans falling down in the Russian campaign. I don't think the Japs are foolish enough to take on an opponent like the U.S. while they still haven't beaten the Chinese, unless it seemed like a cinch.

WILFRED PATTERSON, express worker: I'm afraid Japan will be in the larger war sooner or later and it may well be the U.S. will be fighting her in a few weeks.

* * *

W. RICHARDSON, war veteran: I don't think there will be any direct conflict between the United States and Britain and Japan. I think the Japanese are too wise to walk into such an impossible task. If Hitler appeared to have Russia really beaten, then things would be different. I think the Japanese will shall until they think the favorable moment has arrived, when the British and Americans are too seriously involved elsewhere.

Civic Employees' Bonus Considered

Consideration of the request of civic employees for cost-of-living bonuses effective as from January 1, 1942, was given at a meeting in Mayor John W. Fry's office Wednesday afternoon with Malcolm Alnalie and John Pollock representing the members of the Edmonton Civic Employees' Federation.

It was reported that the employees outlined their request for the payment of the cost-of-living bonus, but that no action was taken by city commissioners pending their report of the terms of the employees' request to city council.

Consumers' League Urges Strict Profiteering, Hoarding Control

Edmonton's Consumers' League in a communication to Donald Gordon, chairman, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, submitted six recommendations to the board, which in the opinion of the league, would be of assistance in the struggle against inflation.

In the opinion of the league the government, through the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, should take steps to discourage profiteering and hoarding and the practice of fixing minimum prices. It recommends that all devices of the old "scarcity economy" must be abolished.

It recommends also that all restraints to production and trade, except war priorities, must be removed. Production for use and abundance must become our objective.

CONSUMERS

The League states that consumers must be made primarily responsible for quality maintenance and must be trained and assisted for that function, and that consumers, business and governments, must declare war on waste.

It suggests also that there is vital need for representation of consumers on all government agencies.

The League is of the opinion that the war costs must be paid out of revenue, but that no income should be permitted to fall below subsistence levels.

A request is made that consideration be given to the fixing of maximum incomes to parallel the freezing of wage levels.

Women Will Be Examined For Wartime Duty

Twenty volunteers for the Canadian Women's Army Corps will be examined at the Prince of Wales Armory on Friday, according to Lt.-Col. E. Brown, M.M., E.D., area commandant.

If the volunteers are accepted, they will be documented here, and then will go to Calgary for training before posting to Canadian Army (C) offices in various parts of the province.

Already there are about 25 women volunteers in the Edmonton Garrison.

Alleged Slayer To Face Charge

Scheduled to appear in city police court Thursday on the charge of murdering Dorothy M. Hammond, fatally stabbed on the night of November 15, Chester W. Johnston, Edmonton shipping assistant, is likely to receive another remand for eight days.

Police officers in charge of the case and Defence Counsel H. C. Macdonald, K.C., have expressed readiness to proceed with the preliminary hearing of the charge but it is believed that a longer period of time is still required for observation of the accused.

Johnston has already made two appearances in city police court since his arrest on the morning of November 18. He has been confined in Fort Saskatchewan jail.

Getting Around with JOHN OLIVER

BEYOND a realization that they are utilitarian articles, the average person never gives a passing, fleeting thought to the toothpick or the clothespin. Normally they are adjuncts of the person or the kitchen that are treated almost like poor relations—except when urgently needed—at which times one is quite ready to exchange "my kingdom for a toothpick" or "my latest hat for a clothespin." Yet, according to a friend who has recently returned from a buying trip for his large city store, in the east, standardization of toothpicks and clothespins is a most important matter.

My operative disclosed the information that such uniformity formed the basis of a discussion sponsored by no less an authority than the government of the United States. Rules were prescribed as to the length of toothpicks of both flat and round varieties. Also, the length, breadth and holding power of clothespins were determined. Discussion on these two highly important contributors to comfort and convenience proceeded simultaneously.

The toothpick deliberations resulted in adoption of proposals to fix the length of the flat kind at 2.375 inches and of the round type at 2.5 inches. A margin of five per cent in either direction was approved. As to the clothespins, standards were established for two types, spring clothespins and slotted clothespins. The latter type was the most widely discussed.

The length of this variety was reduced from the hitherto prevailing 3½ inches to four. The depth of slots was limited to 2.3125 inches. They are to be made exclusively of hardwood and may be either round or flat. In addition, many other details affecting manufacture and packing were determined. The discussions, according to my operative were carried on with the utmost finesse on the part of all to reach an accord. But why, you ask, should there be such precision and such widespread discussion over such ordinary things as toothpicks and clothespins? A logical question and there is a good answer.

The whole movement is part of a program of economy of materials, designed to reduce waste through elimination of needless varieties of product, method or practice. My informant said that nearly 200 articles had thus been standardized to each case the standardization is accomplished on the initiative and with the voluntary co-operation of manufacturers. Efforts are made to bring together all parties interested with a view to co-ordinate their work in developing a simplified practice recommendation.

After all, it should not make a great deal of difference whether a toothpick is round or flat or whether the clothespins are slotted or spring—specially in these days. But it does show that when the production of war essentials is vital to the national welfare that much can be done in the way of uniformity without any loss of comfort, convenience or utility.

People Of Holland Are Risking Their Lives Aiding War Prisoners

LONDON, Dec. 3—(CP)—Secret, unlicensed dispatches smuggled out of Holland, tell how Netherlanders risk their lives by aiding Royal Air Force crews and planning methods for escape to Britain, "Vrij Nederland," Free Netherland newspaper published in London, said the dispatches were brought from Holland by "Special Courier"—a young engineer who escaped.

"Among those who find a sanctuary in Holland are British airmen, pilots and crews who were forced to their exile on the first possible occasion," one dispatch said.

"One of the main difficulties in giving these Britishers refuge is the problem of feeding. Supplies are short but our wedding and food Everybody plays a part. For every 10 who are arrested or taken as hostages, 20 recruits fill the gap."

65 Recruits Of C.W.A.C. Underweight

OTTAWA, Dec. 3—Suffering from the hangover of frequent and faddy diets, a number of pretty prospects for the Canadian Women's Army Corps have had to be sent home and told to put some fat on their bones, Dr. Edna Guest, of Toronto, said in Ottawa yesterday.

Dr. Guest was the first woman physician to be appointed to the C.W.A.C. In Ottawa attending the executive meeting of the National Council of Women, of which she is convener of public health. Since her appointment other women doctors have been selected.

Dr. Guest examined some 150 girls and of this number 65 have been put on probation. Those accepted, Dr. Guest said, were girls keen mentally and physically.

Mrs. Edgar Hardy, president of the National Council of Women, expressed the Council's best wishes to Dr. Guest in the success of her new work. In reply Dr. Guest said she was deeply appreciative of the expressions of congratulations and she accepted it on behalf of all the women physicians engaged in the work. She said a high percentage of the girls accepted for service rank in class "A".

Beauty Paint For Women As Important As Paint For Ships U.S. Defence Officials Say

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3—(CP)—Although there is a threatened shortage of basic materials for cosmetics, United States defence officials plan to go all-out to keep unduly beautiful for they say beauty paint for women is just about as important as war paint for battleships. "If the morale of a nation's women sinks, so does that of the men," one official says.

The girls may have to put up with changes in the packaging of cosmetics. Plastics may be substituted for brass and other metal containers. But officials say for the present there is no shortage in the essentials: lipstick, nail polish and rouge — cosmetics nearly every women finds is part of her daily life.

Because there is a definite shortage of aluminum, beauty parlors are effected. They use aluminum coils in giving permanent waves. Probably, in place of the old-fashioned permanent, women may be confronted with an era of wind-blown bobs. The silk shortage may bring on an era of sun-tanned legs.

Defence officials fear a shortage in solvents which go into the making of cosmetics. The shortage applies especially to solvents, glycerine and alcohol which are used in making explosives, nitroglycerine, and other defence priorities.

Glycerine and alcohol are used also in making astringents, cold creams, facial packs, hair dyes, perfumes and similar articles. Ethyl acetate, used in making nail polish is another important solvent used for making explosives and other defence materials. Substitutes are being developed as fast as possible but better curtailment and substitution shortages can't be avoided.

Nylon as a substitute for silk has made great strides. None of the materials used in making nylon is expected to become scarce, since nylon is a chemical combination of coal, air and water. The metal shortage is pushing the silk fastener off the market but there are plenty of buttons.

University Women Hear Address By Prof. Cecil Burgess

After the war, there can be no doubt that a large proportion of production will be turned over to satisfying the needs of the wage earners in manufacturing industries, and less of it to dispensable "luxuries," so stated Professor C. S. Burgess, when he addressed a meeting of the University Women's Club in the Macdonald hotel on Monday afternoon. Professor Burgess chose as his topic "Town Planning Present and Future."

In his address he illustrated the men earning about $80 a month, who makes possible at this salary the maintenance of a high standard of living, through their courage, energy, initiative, intelligence and skill.

Mrs. H. C. Newland, president of the club, presided at the meeting.

Junior Hostesses Name New Executive For Their Club

A representative from each of the 72 organizations attached to the Junior Hostesses of the United War Services Y.M.C.A. hostess club attended a recent meeting of the hostesses, when a central executive was named to carry on the business of the combined clubs.

It was reported that the proceeds of the tea for the merchant marines, held in the navy barracks on November 9, will be disposed of in the following way, $150 to be given to merchant marines, and the balance, $133 to be used by the junior hostesses to purchase wool for sweaters and to fill the ditty bags which, when completed, will be turned over to the merchant marines.

At the first meeting of the central executive, held in the Y.M.C.A. on Friday evening, Mrs. W. L. Willett and Mrs. Leonard Wize were named honorary presidents, and Miss Catherine Clibborn, president.

Others named to office were Miss Jean Weir, vice-president; Miss Mae Smith, secretary; Miss Mary McArthur, treasurer; Miss Zella Oliver, publicity; Miss Mary Calder, assisted by Miss Carol Stenzel, ditty bags; and wool; Miss Jean Weir, assisted by Miss Rose Norrington, convener of ditty bags.

Job Holds No Terror Girl Parachutist

NEW YORK, Dec. 3—(AP)—Marie McMillin makes her living "falling down the sky" with serene faith that she will never be killed in a parachute jump. She has made 296 jumps—one from a distance of 24,800 feet to set what she calls a world altitude record for women. And the "queen of the parachute jumpers" expects to leap hundreds of times more and "live to a ripe old age."

"I am not afraid because I have faith," she told me with a serene look in her deep blue eyes. "I have faith in myself, faith in my 'chute and a real faith in God. He gives me the strength to go up, the courage to leap and the knowledge of what to do. After I jump He says to me, 'Now, Marie, it's up to you. Pull your own ripcord.' He has never let me down and He never will.

"No parachute jumper needs to be killed. Those who are killed are careless or use poor equipment. I always jump in a U.S. Department of Commerce registered parachute. It has two 'chutes on the same harness—one on the chest and one on the back. I never heard of both failing to open."

HER BIG IDEA

Marie has one great ambition. She wants to help organize and train, under government supervision, a Parachute Battalion of Nurses. She says that in wartime the nurses (dressed in black and wearing black parachutes) could be dropped behind the lines to do their work, and that in national emergencies of fire and flood they would also be useful. She wrote Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt of her plan and says the project is now in the hands of Alma C. Haupt, nursing consultant of the health and medical committee which works under the direction of the office of defence, health and welfare services.

The queen of the parachute jumpers was an $18 a week clerk in a Columbus, Ohio, hotel—a young widow with a two-year-old daughter to support—when she made her first jump on June 8, 1930. A newspaper reporter got her the job with a $500 fee because she said she was "bound to go to the top in some profession" and would "jump out of a skyscraper" if she could get the money to educate little Gertrude. She went up after 15 minutes of instruction.

DOESN'T LIKE SUBWAYS

Has she never been afraid? Once—I was fit to be tied on my first subway ride," she confessed. "We went down there in that black hole, were locked in a steel train and were hurtling along at a mile a minute without knowing where we were going. I thought we'd never come to the end. I don't like to travel in cars either. There's too much danger. Parachutes are safer!"

Marie's most spectacular jump was the 24,800-foot leap on Women's Day at the National Air Races in Cleveland on Sept. 2, 1932. The record she claims from the jump is unofficial (though carefully clocked by instruments) because the Federal Aeronautique Internationale, which keeps world air records, does not yet record parachute jumps.

When she made the leap she fell numbly through the air, lapsed from consciousness after she pulled her ripcord and "came to" to find herself drifting rapidly toward Lake Erie. Marie wore heavy equipment and she can't swim a stroke. She tugged frantically on her cords in vain.

"Then I prayed. 'Oh, God, help me now!' she said. "For a minute it was just like I stood still in the sky. Then something seemed to turn me around. I drifted back in the other direction and came down safely on land."

Women Must Play Greater Part In Canada's War Effort

OTTAWA, Dec. 3.—(CP)—The necessity of increased participation by women in the war effort was stressed in a recent address by War Services Minister Thorson.

We've got to look on the human resources of this country as being, womanpower as well as manpower," Mr. Thorson told the executive meeting of the National Council of Women.

He paid tribute to the support already given by the women of Canada but emphasized they will shortly be called upon to do much more, especially in the field of war industry.

"I do not think it would be an overstatement to say that there are already 50,000 women engaged in war industry," he said.

British Women In Factories There To Stay Is Claim

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3—(AP)—Women are on the assembly lines of British factories to stay, Miss Margaret Bondfield, former British minister of labor, reported today, and women who have taken the places of skilled workmen are getting the same wages the men drew.

Miss Bondfield arrived recently at Boston. She is chairman of the women's group on public welfare and is here, she told a press conference at the British embassy, to tell the United States what British women workers are doing and what problems they are meeting.

In the skilled classifications the men have been guaranteed they will get their jobs back after the war, for the most part, and the women will have to step out.

But she predicted women "are there to stay" in the mass production industries, and the difficulty will be to find places for men in the field.

PEPLUM IS REVIVED IN THIS YEAR'S FASHION FAVORITES

Soft dark color subtlety for daytime clothes and the natural-looking silhouette are news in the current showings of American couturiers. And these two style points are exemplified here. Jay Thorpe designed the juicy green crepe dress, draping the material from the waist to form a streamlined front peplum. The blue wool and velveteen two-piece dress shown at right is designed by Bergdorf Goodman. Its peplum ripples smartly forward but fit is emphasized, nevertheless. The hat is mustard-green with brilliant red, gold and blue feathers. The furs, shown here as a muff, unhinge to form a stole.

Is Your Child Thin and Under Par?

Try New, Improved Ovaltine

Science has proved there are certain food elements every one needs for proper nutrition. If there aren't enough of them in the foods we eat, serious things can happen. For example: If a child's diet is deficient in vitamins, his appetite is likely to suffer and his growth may be stunted or impaired. His resistance to infection may be lowered.

As a protecting food drink, New, Improved Ovaltine supplements the diet with certain food elements more likely to be deficient in ordinary foods—thus it acts as an insurance against food deficiences that retard normal development.

Ovaltine has always been a source of Vitamins A, B and D and the minerals Calcium, Phosphorus and Iron but recently, in the light of the latest knowledge of nutritional science, it has been enhanced in all these elements.

So—if your child eats poorly, is thin or under par, start giving him New, Improved Ovaltine.

Social Credit W.A. Meets In Calgary

CALGARY, Dec. 3—Meeting at provincial convention of the Social Credit Women's Auxiliary are reported to have unanimously passed a resolution urging that an increase in the mothers' allowance be granted. "Such increase to be at least equal to the increased cost of living."

The convention is closed to the press.

It was stated by the press committee appointed by the convention that the allowance is "deplorably small compared with wages and living costs of today," and that the cost of living bonus has been granted to a very large portion of Canadian wage earners, owing to this increase in living costs."

In resolutions, the convention pledged its "unflinching opposition to the control of finance by a financial monopoly whose sole interest in the war is control and whose purpose will be a profound negation of which side wins the war," and that the co-operation of all democratic organizations be sought "with the same objective, "namely government control of finance, to be secured if possible in the development of a United Monetary Reform Movement."

In her address on "Women's Place on the World's Program," Mrs. Edith Gostick said that "lack of security in the world today calls for the combined efforts of men and women to remedy the situation. If the world is to progress, women must take their place completely on a par with man."

Mrs. Gostick, as the Social Credit Women's Auxiliary southern representative, and Mrs. Joiner Golder, as the northern representative, reported the largest membership up to date, 17 centers in the south and 17 in the north. The organization embraces nearly 700 members altogether.

After the business session, a movie, "The Water Boy," was shown.

WOMAN M.L.A. IS SPEAKER

Canada is still thinking in terms of what we can afford financially, and our effort is not being put down in keeping with the amount of money which the government is able to borrow or take from the people, Mrs. Rose Wood, M.L.A., of Stony Plain, told the Social Credit Women's Auxiliary at its meeting on Tuesday.

"Canada's complete war effort," Mrs. Wood said, "is really limited only by the man power, material and productive facilities available. What is physically possible is financially possible, and the Dominion government should be making Canada's complete war effort financially possible."

Mrs. Wood was speaking on "obstacles to our objectives," of which she said the first was "ignorance of the truth concerning the financial set-up. People have been victimized by a fraudulent money system which falsifies facts. They do not realize that we are asleep to the fact that the wealth, the producing and distributing facilities, are exploited by those who control our finance. A private concern is running the whole works for its own benefit and profit."

Premier Aberhart, Hon. Lucien Maynard, and Mrs. Leona Barrett addressed an open meeting at the Palliser hotel on Monday evening, under the auspices of the Social Credit Women's Auxiliary, and members of all women's organizations in Calgary were invited to attend.

Mrs. Barrett spoke on "The World Federation of Women," and Mr. Maynard on "Women in the Eyes of the Law."

Dorothy Samis Is Bride Of Robert Haxby

CENTRAL figure in a beautiful fully-appointed home wedding ceremony in Namao on Saturday evening was Dorothy Jeanne Samis, daughter of Mrs. J. S. Samis of Namao, when she became the bride of Robert E. Haxby, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Haxby of Edmonton. The ceremony was performed at the home of Mrs. Samis, with Rev. O. R. Lavers officiating.

For her wedding the bride chose a flowing gown of white chiffon, fashioned with dainty sweetheart neckline, short sleeves and full skirt. Her veil of fine bridal net was caught to her head with a halo of orange blossoms and cascaded in soft folds over her shoulders. Her only ornament was a lovely gift of the bridegroom. Completing her charming ensemble she wore elbow length lace mitts and carried an arm bouquet of red roses.

Miss M. Brettinger was bridesmaid wearing for the occasion a georgette gown of soft pastel blue with long sleeves and sweeping skirt. With this she wore a tiny hat of matching blue, and carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations.

Mr. Allen Samis, brother of the bride, supported the bridegroom as best man. Wedding music was supplied by Miss Beatrice McLay.

Following the ceremony a reception was held. Mrs. Samis received her guests wearing a rust velvet afternoon dress accented with yellow roses in corsage. Mrs. Haxby chose an afternoon frock of romance blue with which she wore fragrant red roses.

Lighted by the soft glow from tall white tapers in cut glass holders, the bride's table was centred in a three-tiered wedding cake set in a bed of pink tulle.

Mr. and Mrs. Haxby will make their home in Edmonton.

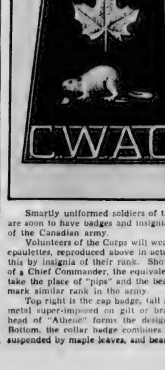
SMART INSIGNIA FOR WOMEN'S ARMY



Smartly uniformed soldiers of the Canadian Women's Army Corps are soon to have badges and insignia of rank as smart as any regiment of the Canadian army.

Volunteers of the Corps will wear the C.W.A.C. badge on the brown epaulettes, reproduced above in actual size, and officers will surmount this by insignia of their rank. Shown on the epaulette is the insignia of a Chief Commander, the equivalent of Lieut.-Colonel. Maple leaves take the place of "pips" and the beaver is worn where a crown would mark similar rank in the army.

Top right is the cap badge, tall ranks), three maple leaves in white metal super-imposed on gilt or brass lozenge. Centre, the helmeted head of "Athene" forms the design for the buttons of the uniform. Bottom, the collar badge combines the head of "Athene" and a scroll suspended by maple leaves, and bearing the letters, "C.W.A.C."

Dorothy Dix Says:

The discarded wife always poses as a martyr and calls upon her friends and acquaintances to shed tears of pity over her. Sometimes she is, in reality, the victim of man's perfidy and deserving of all the sympathy she can get. But in the great majority of cases the woman who loses her husband does so because she has made no honest and intelligent effort to keep him. For, sad to say, a vast number of women are not square shooters in the matrimonial game. They look upon marriage as a graft in which the husband must provide what they gave nothing and as soon as the wedding ceremony is over they expect to climb up on the gravy train and loaf and guzzle the balance of their lives. This is true both sentimentally and materially. Everywhere you hear wives bewailing their breasts and wailing because their husbands take them for granted and no longer tell them how beautiful and wonderful they are or bestow upon them burning kisses instead of those that are as flabby as a cold flapjack.

Dorothy Dix

When you think how many men have to get up in the morning and cook their own breakfasts while their lazy wives turn over in bed for another snooze; how many men come home at night to a dirty and cluttered house and a meal that would poison an ostrich; how many men spend their lives slaving to support able-bodied wives in idleness and get nothing but whining and complaints and reproaches because they don't make more money for their reward, you are not surprised that there are so many wife-deserters.

The truth is that many women are either too stupid or too besotted with selfishness to ever face the fact that marriage is a business at which they must work as hard and as continuously as they would at any other job if they would make a success of it.

In proof of all of this, read this letter from a woman whose husband recently said to her:

"We have been married 28 years. You have nagged me and been jealous of me and accused me of every sin under the sun when you knew positively that I was innocent.

"Ever since we have been married you have fought to dominate me and to have your own way in even the very smallest things. You have never tried to improve your mind or to control your temper. No matter how many times you have made a complete person as unhappy as you have made me.

"Now I have found a woman who gives me all the happiness and love you have never given me, but because you are not in bed health I have told her there is no hope for a divorce. The price you will have to pay for your folly and the way you have treated me is the loss of my love and respect."

And this woman asks: "What shall I do to win back my husband's love?"

The only atonement this wife can make to her husband for the years she has made destitute is to humble by ceasing to resemble one Ann and by showing some appreciation of the great sacrifice he is making for her.

DOROTHY DIX.

Girls and Grannies Will Mind Babies British War Effort

CARLISLE, England, Dec. 3—(CP)—Miss Florence Horsbrugh, parliamentary secretary to the ministry of health, foresaw indeed that a new big call-up of women would mean that girls of 16, grandmothers and greataunts will be needed to take care of the children of war-working mothers.

Miss Horsbrugh told the Sunday Pictorial: "For the first time grandmothers are offered the chance to play their part in the war effort. There are many women between 50 and 60 years of age whose experience fits them for the task of minding the children of mothers working in war factories. The 16-year-olds will staff nurseries.

Your Figure, Madame!

By IDA JEAN KAIN

What you teen age girls apparently want most on this world is to be pretty. That may shock your Ma, even in a beauty contest, beauty is no longer enough. And the training that wins the hypercritical approval of the Atlantic City judges would make any gal the centre of attraction in her home town.

For this inside story of what it takes to win fame and fortune I consulted Ned Wayburn. Mr. Wayburn has helped pick beauties in the national sweepstakes for so long —35 years in all and during 16 of them he was Flo Ziegfeld's manager—that he is now called the dean of the judges.

"The day of the beautiful but dumb is finished," Mr. Wayburn told me emphatically. "Besides looks and talent of an unusual order, a girl must have brains, poise, good manners, a pleasing voice—all the points that add up to a charming personality. And then she must be willing to work hard and to keep so fit that she can work as hard as necessary without affecting her health and looks."

None of those things can be faked in fact nothing can be faked. Seven of this year's contestants thought to improve on nature and beauty by wearing built-in-and-up brassieres. Nobody was the wiser for two days. Then the chaperones tumbled to the secret and a word to the baffled but chivalrous judges disqualified the young ladies from any consideration. Nothing was said to them and they continued appearing in the events. Unless they read this they will probably never know how well their secret was known.

It should be heartening to the majority of you to learn that Mr. Wayburn thinks above average height unnecessary except for fashion modeling. He looks for fine features, good skin and symmetrical proportions. For camera work, the figure must be ultra-streamlined and the carriage perfect that the appearance is charming from every angle of view.

"I look first at the face and last at the ankles" plus your picker says. "My only measurement standard is that the circumference of the throat equal that of the calf. If the throat measures 13 inches, the calf should measure the same.

If you spend too much time as a wallflower, it is probably because you are a clumsy dancer—something which Mr. Wayburn maintains can be corrected by learning the simple mechanics of shifting your weight. Here is an exercise he prescribes.

Stand erect heels together, knees together, toes turned out, and arms relaxed and down. Have weight equally distributed on both feet and also equally distributed between ball and heel of each foot. Now practice, practice, practice until you master the art of shifting entire weight from one foot to the other, back and forth. Then shift from heels to toes forward and back in a slow movement! To stand gracefully, make a point of carrying the hands relaxed and down at sides with the little finger just about where the side seams would be if your clothes. And when you ask Mr. Wayburn about this you'll get the usual answer that when the small of the back pressed flat against something and the spine correctly shaped we will go on.

Your Baby And Mine

It's always a pleasure to hear about babies whose days are a succession of good meals, ample sleep and the sweetest dispositions which mirror their boundless contentment. A baby's schedule must be pretty much all right when it is days and months are minus all problems.

Mrs. B. H tells about their happy, contented baby. "He seldom cries, just fusses when it is close to his feeding time. Every time we look at him he smiles. He sits in his high chair and plays for some time with his toys.

"He is 7-months-old, has 4 teeth, weighs 19 pounds and has been crawling all over for the last 2 weeks. He lies on his stomach and pulls himself along by his arms.

"The following is his diet:

"6 a.m. One bottle of milk formula.

"8 a.m. Orange juice and oil.

"10 a.m. Cooked porridge or precooked cereal, plus 8 ounces of formula.

"6 p.m. Porridge, crushed banana or apricots, prunes or apple sauce and his formula.

"He wants to eat everything he sees. I have been using my own judgment about the quantities, as he never eats quite the same amount each time.

Since this fourth month he has been eating from a spoon and drinking from a glass and he likes the glass better than the bottle. He is quite regular in his bowel habits. All summer he got lots of sunshine and his legs are still quite tanned."

The highest praise I can give you is to say that you have just like my youngest grandson. I know what a precious joy he must be to you and with all mothers could have such health.

Mrs. M. E. T., I am a little doubtful as to whether you want an expression of opinion about your baby's meals or whether they were intended as a further criticism of the mother who was below 20 and I did tell her that her baby's diet was deficient and sent her material to help her correct it. Your baby has a splendid diet which could now bear the addition of such foods as meat, liver, liver soup, gelatine, etc. This is in the leaflet for the baby of this age.

Our leaflet "Three-Meal-a-Day Schedule" is intended for the baby of 8 months of age, and up. It may be had by sending your request and a three-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

Minute Make-Ups

The knitting craze has gone to our heads with a vengeance! The newest is a very cute idea of knitted helmets with loops of fringe which look like hair. A clever New York model wears them in every color for her own amusement and because she can fake out without doing her hair.

The different colors are brunette brown, woody, gray, auburn, and a flaming red. Fun and clever. Use a smart, sophisticated make-up effect to match your knitted hair helmet!

McCoy Health Service

Influenza is an acute contagious disease which produces a catarrhal inflammation of the mucous membrane lining the breathing passages. It is also called "Flu" or "La Grippe," and is most frequently found between the ages of 10 and 40. Some cases are so mild they are mistakenly diagnosed as "colds."

One of the characteristic signs of influenza is the quickness with which it spreads. The patient may get up in the morning with what she thinks is a cold and may try to go about her work as usual, only to find sometime during the day that she has suddenly become so weak that his legs will barely hold him up.

This disorder may start with a severe chill which will be followed by fever. In cases of average severity the temperature will run around 100 degrees Fahr. but in more serious cases it will go up to 102 or 104. Usually, aches and pains are present in the muscles, the muscles of the legs and lower back being particularly affected.

During the early stages there is frequently headache, and the patient says she eyeballs hurt. A dry cough soon appears which is the result of the membranes being irritated. The face is flushed and the patient may report that the throat feels sore.

The patient with a mild, uncomplicated case of influenza has an excellent chance of recovering provided he receives good nursing and good care. In the more severe cases the body resistance is extremely low, and pneumonia following the coughing spells may be more marked, and the patient is probably complain of pain in the chest of the most feeling tight and raw.

The more severe type of case is fatal; to make the patient feel weak for some time afterward, and it is a wise plan for the physician to prepare the patient for this by explaining that an illness of three or four days may be followed by a siege of weakness lasting for three or four weeks.

The important causes which predispose a patient to influenza are overwork and overexcitement. These are the fundamental causes and are produced by late hours, over-eating, smokefulness of the indoor atmosphere, and by the habit of living which squanders nervous energy will pave the way for an attack of influenza.

The easiest way to prevent the disease is to obtain enough sleep, see that your diet is well-balanced, and to take enough exercise out of doors to keep up the normal strength and tone of the muscles. All of these points are of importance. Influenza is an infectious disorder and the best way to protect yourself against it is by doing those things which build good resistance.

All questions regarding Health and Diet will be answered. Large stamped self-addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address McCoy Health Service, 1151 West 6th St. Los Angeles, Calif.

Latin American Desserts Add A Different Touch

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

The "dolces" or desserts of our Latin American neighbors are different from ours. They like pastes and sweet preserves with cream cheese, custards, cookies and little pies fried in deep fat, and sponge cakes. Usually with these "dolces," the hostess serves little cups of black coffee topped with sweetened whipped cream with a hint of vanilla in it.

"DREAMS"

One-fourth cup butter, 1 tablespoon sugar, ½ cup milling water, ½ cup flour; 2 eggs, 1 tablespoon orange flower water (optional), deep frying fat.

Combine the butter, sugar and water. Bring to boiling point; add the flour all at once, and stir vigorously until the mixture leaves the sides of the pan and makes a ball of dough. Beat in the orange flower water and cool for 5 minutes. Then work in the eggs one at a time without beating. The dough should be thick and very smooth. Shape into marble-sized balls and drop from a spoon into deep fat hot enough to brown a bit of bread in a minute.

When brown and puffy drain on crumpled paper. Serve thickly dusted with cinnamon and powdered sugar. Or roll in a thick sugar syrup (or melted jelly may be substituted) and roll in powdered sugar mixed with minced blanched almonds. Or the "dreams" may be split open, filled with cinnamon cooked cream and rolled in powdered sugar.

GYPSY EMBRACE

Three eggs, 1 cup granulated sugar, 1-3 cup milk, few grains salt, ½ teaspoon lemon extract, 1 cup flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, cooked cream filling.

Beat the eggs until light. Add the sugar and continue to beat until light and creamy. Add the milk, salt and extract, and then fold in the flour and baking powder. Transfer to a large oiled pan, the bottom lined with waxed paper, and making the batter a scant half-inch deep. Bake in a moderately hot oven, about 25 minutes. Turn at once onto a clean sheet of waxed paper dusted with powdered sugar. Dust with cinnamon, spread almost to the edge with a thick cinnamon cooked cream, roll up like jelly roll, and cool, rolled in the paper.

Tomorrow's Menu

Breakfast: Grapefruit juice, scrambled eggs, wholewheat muffins, coffee, milk.

Luncheon: Spaghetti with tomato sauce, hard rolls, baked apples, cookies, tea, milk.

Nicer Friends Won by Nicer Manners

Do your attempts to win nicer friends fall flat? Maybe you've neglected the social forms so important to well-bred people!

Introducing any person with "Meet my friend, Mr. Jones" you imply that only Mr. Jones is your friend. Such introductions are as crude as saying "I'd like to make you acquainted with" or putting the man's name before the girl's. Simple and always correct is "Miss Dell, Mr. Jones."

Remember, your manners are all that strangers can see!

You make such a poor impression, out with a party, if you attempt to hail taxis or open doors yourself—but such a good impression if you let the men in the group do those things for you.

Then, knowing what's correct on special occasions you receive special invitations! At a formal affair, you precede your beau in the reception line; with a theatre party you wait for your host to suggest your place.

Our 32-page booklet has all the ful social life. Tells how to date, be social life. Tells how to date, behave at dances, games, the theatre; what to say at introductions, invitations.

STAND TAKEN AT EDMONTON MEETING

Liberals Won't Join Independent Citizens' Group

Declare Party Will Not Forsake Own Association For Any Political Union

King administration on its stand on the question of conscription and severely criticized eastern interests and the Edmonton Journal for the manner in which an attempt is being made to arouse public sentiment on the question.

AGAINST UNITY

The following speakers addressed the gathering in the given order:

Neil D. Maclean, K.C.: I wish to briefly state that the meeting of the General Council of the Provincial Liberal Association in Calgary on September 27 left three definite impressions in my mind. The first was that the meeting was definitely against unity. One gentleman could not even get a seconder for a resolution that asked for further co-operation with the unity movement.

The second impression was that the federal members seemed to take the attitude that the provincial party should not be too active in provincial politics. They did not appear to be as enthusiastic about disbanding the unity idea as were the others present.

I was highly impressed with the action of Hugh John Macdonald and J. J. Bowlen for standing firmly for Liberalism.

URGES ORGANIZATION

Hugh J. Montgomery, Wetaskiwin: It is not my intention to lambaste or ridicule other political parties. We have our own business to attend to. When sedection time comes, that will be the time to criticize constructively the policies of other parties.

I have heard and read about men in public offices and men in prominent standing make charges that they could not prove. Such action is only reflected on the person as an individual and on the party he represents. Our attention now should be turned completely to the matter of organization.

At the Calgary meeting on September 27, a splendid organization to assist the executive officers was set up.

It is our primary duty to see that a live Liberal organization is set up in every provincial constituency.

The method of procedure that your executive proposes to follow is this.

STRONG, ACTIVE FORCE

The rural constituencies we plan to divide into smaller areas and select active leaders in each area. After that the local Liberal association in each constituency will be reorganized.

We already have assurances of active support from many good Liberals throughout the province.

Members of the provincial executive in the northern part of the province will be responsible for organization activity in the northern part, and the same is true for members from the south.

At this time I invite further suggestions and advice from this body.

We have a direct mandate from the general council to make the Liberal party a strong and active force with a common sense policy that will return the Liberal party to power at the next election.

COMPLETE AUTONOMY

It was our policy during the last election to run as few candidates against the government candidates as possible. We had hoped that this would prevent the election unanimously candidates. In our organization each constituency has complete autonomy and was free to decide what was to be done in that regard.

Our hopes for placing not more than two candidates in each constituency was dispelled when one party decided to run its own candidates. This resulted in the government being returned by a minority vote.

Even under those circumstances I am convinced that the government would have been defeated if the voters would have taken advantage of the transferable ballot system of voting. I believe that voters should be compelled by law to exercise that right of vote.

This would eliminate any possibility of defeating a candidate by a majority vote.

The Provincial Liberal party will never consent to any action on the part of its members to form a new party which would eventually hope to absorb our party's identification.

We did our share in co-operating during the last election and in doing so we kept our Liberal party intact. We now see how valuable Mr. Gray's advice on this point was at that time.

As a result of following his advice we have today a strong active provincial constituency in this province.

REFUSED INVITATION

Hugh John Macdonald, K.C., M.L.A.: Neither J. J. Bowlen or I have ever had at any time the slightest idea of joining any other party. I wish to explain my reason for attending the Independents' meeting at the Macdonald hotel last week. Each M.L.A. from Edmonton, Percy Page, D. M. Duggan and myself, were asked to appoint three men to accompany us as delegates. I preferred to go alone on the grounds that I did not wish to implicate others with respect to my stand on the matter.

I was of the impression that many members at the meeting were against forming a new party. There has been an association formed and an executive of 19 members has been appointed. The result of the meeting was that if no party has been formed they have come close to forming one.

About 40 ridings were represented at the meeting. Nothing was said about choosing a provincial leader or about party policy. The question to decide was, when does an association become a party? What has been done came perilously close to forming a new party. Several M.L.A.'s thought a new party had not been formed. The Independent members themselves have not as a body joined the association.

Both Bowlen and I were asked to become members of the executive but refused to do so.

I was elected on a Liberal slate and I propose to be guided by its policies. Both Mr. Bowlen and I plan on meeting the provincial executive before the session opens and after discussing the matter with them we propose to be guided by their decision.

I left the meeting with a feeling that many who were there did not think that a new party was being formed.

APPROVES PLANS

Walter S. Campbell: I heartily approve the proposed plans for reorganization as outlined by our provincial president. I was one of the group at the Calgary meeting who was opposed to setting a date for a provincial convention. I did not disagree because of alleged stalling tactics in favor of co-operation with unity as one speaker here charged, but I felt that in this time of war the setting of a date at this time may create a trap that may prove harmful to the party. I do not think that the federal members stalled on the date question for the reasons as given by Mr. Maclean.

I have no use for the men who spread anti-Liberal propaganda not only in Alberta, but in the dominion. They have the time and the funds but it is being done for private gain that they hope may derive from destruction of the Liberal party and not for any national benefit.

I have in my possession a propaganda sheet as part of a publication in a Southern Press paper in Ottawa. It was sent to me by a man in the East. I have written him a six page reply. Such propaganda is distributed for one purpose only and that is the destruction of the Liberal party.

I am sure we are all agreed that we had one dose of this co-operative effort in the last election and don't should be asked for all time.

NATIONAL CONTACT NEEDED

Edward C. Fisher: I had the personal experience on the matter of co-operation during the last election but it did not work out so well for me.

I have had this other experience however—that for the past 20 years we in Alberta have been isolated from the rest of Canada. That because we had a U.F.A. regime and since 1935 a Social Credit government.

That experience, under which the whole province suffers, has convinced me that even if a Unity group were successful in the next election, it would only mean that we would continue to be isolated from the rest of Canada and from the parent government.

For the best results we must have the national contact, and we can get it only if we have a Liberal government here.

I have never yet known a person who called himself an Independent in politics who stood for anything.

He has no policies to stand by. He has nothing to cling to. He is always sitting on someone else's doorstep.

For these reasons, win or lose, I believe we should cling to straight Liberalism. I am convinced that if Unity candidates were elected to power they would be the backers of a Tory national policy—and that would be repetition of the catastrophe of 1917.

I am confident that our provincial leader, Mr. Montgomery, will see us through.

Time and again I have heard federal Liberal members consider their personal interests as of not much concern for the party. I believe that we should run the show in the province as a strictly provincial organization, with no interest whatever in the federal field.

CO-OPERATION REQUIRED

Alex Blair: I wish to disassociate myself from the statements made by Mr. Fisher. I believe that there should be harmony as to the provincial and federal organizations in the province, and that the provincial Liberal party should co-operate with the Liberal organizations in other provinces and with the federal Liberal government.

Mr. Fisher: I do not criticize the federal government, but I did criticize the attitude of some of the federal members.

CONSCRIPTION POLICY

James Morrison: I am anxious that someone tell us something about what can be done about debts.

At this point I wish to defend the King administration on its stand in regard to conscription. His government was elected in 1940 on the strength that there will be no conscription.

I cannot understand the argument of the Edmonton Journal that the King administration should pass conscription legislation. How can King be elected on a policy of no conscription and then pass legislation for conscription?

I defy the editor of the Journal to show any incident in the last 150 years of British parliamentary procedure where the parliament turned down any case that was referred to the public.

The Journal makes the prediction that King would get enough support from the Conservatives to insure passing of the bill.

I say that the Conservative party and the Edmonton Journal are attempting to engineer the passing of a bill in parliament that is directly opposite to the wishes of the people as indicated by the vote in 1940.

Whenever you see the Journal put up any article about conscription—you can call it nonsense.

ANNUAL MEETING

Chairman McBride: The question of conscription is hardly on the agenda for this meeting. We hope to organize shortly sufficiently well to have time for discussing this and many other important topics.

The meeting adjourned following a motion that the annual meeting of the association be held in the I.O.O.F. hall on January 9.

U.S. Submarines Keep Sharp Lookout

Sight of a submarine at sea these days is plenty of cause to view with alarm, but this one, photographed off the New England coast, is one of the United States' newest undersea boats, the U.S.S. Grampus. She is speeding along on the surface, all of her 299 feet of length above water, bottom. That gun is a three-inch anti-aircraft gun. Lieut.-Com. Edward S. Hutchinson, top left, is skipper of the Grampus. A submarine is not built for fighting on the surface. She is not intended to swap punches with surface ships, so she must be constantly on the alert when travelling on the surface, for a speedy destroyer could make short work of her. Hence there can be no let-up of vigilance when a sub comes up for air. This lookout, top right, is sweeping the sea with his binoculars from the conning tower of the U.S.S. Grampus. Note slenderness of the craft towards the bow.

Canadian Corps Overseas Given Fine Treatment

Through the reputation established by Canadian soldiers in the First Great War, the modern Canadian Corps overseas is being received with open arms and treated marvelously" the people of the British Isles, Lt. R. L. "Bob" Procter, of an Edmonton unit overseas, told a meeting of the Edmonton branch of the Canadian Corps in the Masonic Temple Tuesday night.

Lt. Procter is on leave prior to taking a special course in the east He was introduced by the Corps president, Lt.-Col. F. A. Stewart-Dunn.

YOUNG MEN NEEDED

"See to it that young Canadians are pushed out of Canada to overseas service, and your Canadian Corps in England will see to it that the reputation of the Canadian army is upheld," Lt. Procter said. He urged the large gathering of more than 500 "old sweats" and first-war nursing sisters not to feel "put out" because they are not being allowed to serve again in this war.

"Members of the new army have got to be young enough to be pushed and pushed and still stand up to the grind," he said. "Men of 20 to 21 are what we need over there. Send them over!"

TOOK PART IN RAID

"Bob" Procter, famed in golf circles throughout the Dominion prior to enlisting, was one of a number of Edmontonians who took part in the Spitsbergen raid last fall. He told many experiences that had come his way overseas. "If you want to know what the Canadians are doing over there now," he remarked, "just remember that the British people regard us as the same bunch that went over last time. They say we haven't changed a bit."

He stated that while Canadian troops were bored in some ways, they had become reconciled to staying awhile in England. They keep us moving about and we have plenty to do, he said. He paid special tribute to transport drivers, lauding them as the hardest-worked men in the army.

APPRECIATE TREATMENT

Closing his address, Lt. Procter thanked, on behalf of the Canadians in England, citizens on this side of the Atlantic who, in their generosity, had made the soldiers the envy of everyone for the treatment they received from home. "We realize you are contributing to us all the time," he said, "and we certainly appreciate it."

Other features of the meeting included four motion pictures shown by the extension department of the University of Alberta.

Dealing with various phases of the present conflict, the pictures, all in sound, were: Guards of the North, Everywhere in the World, London Nights, and The Battle of Brains.

Members enjoyed a period of community singing and received "rations" of coffee and doughnuts at the close of the meeting.

Dr. W. E. Brewing Is Tendered Luncheon

Last social function in honor of Dr. W. E. Brewing took place Tuesday noon at Central United church. The distinguished visitor from Toronto spoke on the services that a church offers to the people of a country.

Dr. Brewing concluded a series of sermons and lectures in Edmonton during the last week on a mission sponsored by the United Church Ministerial association of Edmonton.

Mayor Fry presided at the luncheon and Rt. Rev. A. S. Tuttle, moderator of the United Church of Canada, was among the guests.

Voluntary services offered by the church in remote and newly-settled areas of Edmonton, he said. The church is saving outstanding individuals who later themselves become the centres of great influence in their communities, he added.

About 100 persons, most of whom were laymen and women from the United Church congregations of the city, attended.

Soldier Overseas

Pte. Fred Wilson, R.C.A.S.C., husband of Mrs. F. Wilson, 9415 110 avenue, arrived overseas in the last contingent, according to word received here by his wife. They formerly resided at Ronan, Alta., and Pte. Wilson joined the army in Edmonton in April of this year.

Army Requests Use Of School Basement Rooms

Request for the use of basement school rooms for training of Reserve Canadian Army machine gunners was made to the Edmonton public school board at a meeting Tuesday by Lt.-Col. H. B. Jamieson, commanding officer of the Edmonton artillery.

After a short discussion of the suitability of the facilities available at McKay avenue school which was specifically requested by the officer, the board referred the matter to the property committee. They assured the military delegation that the board was highly sympathetic to the request, but the matter of extra cost entailed in heating and water would have to be taken up in a routine manner. A decision will be reached before the next board meeting, it was announced.

FOR GUN CREWS

Lt.-Col. Jamieson stated he desired rooms that would accommodate five Bren gun crews of 15 men each and class room space for map study.

Board members feared that soldiers' hob-nailed boots would literally play hob with the polished hardwood floor of the school assembly hall. The military men admitted this would probably be true and stated they would inspect the basement facilities which may prove ample for their purposes.

The board was assured there would be no marching. The rooms would be required two evenings each week between the hours of 8 and 10. The military men said that a fatigue party would assist the school janitorial staff in cleaning up after the classes. It return the representative of the caretakers assured the delegation that the caretakers would be willing to donate services free of charge on the nights in question.

PUPILS SUBSCRIBE

The board agreed to permit the use of one of the schools for rehearsals for the Little Theatre group at the nominal rental.

School pupils are really going over the top in the matter of war savings stamps, purchases. The amount for the month of November, 1941 is $1,145 as compared to $516.75 in November of last year, an increase of $628.25.

Passing of S. G. McCormack, veteran member of the caretaker's staff of the Highlands school, who has served the board for 25 years, was noted with great regret. Condolences have been forwarded to the family of deceased.

Supt. of Schools Ross S. Sheppard started a lively discussion after telling of a strange request he had received during the day.

BLOOD TRANSFUSIONS

Mr. Sheppard said he had received a request that an announcement be made in the schools asking for volunteers for a blood transfusion. The superintendent said he had refused to make the announcement pending instructions from the board. He wanted to know if he had made the correct decision in the opinion of the board.

A majority of the board were of the opinion that the superintendent had acted wisely. It was finally decided to refer the question to the school medical department for an opinion.

The board adopted a resolution, introduced by Trustee Gunderson providing that the members of all standing committees be that of the whole board, and that a quorum for each committee consist of three members. Formerly only two committees, management and conference, were committees of the whole board.

Approval of contracts for materials for 1942 required for classrooms of art and industrial and caretakers' supplies, amounting to $12,860.36, was made. The supply contracts, distributed among 18 firms, were received by approval by the board property committee.

They are divided generally as follows: Classroom and school supplies, $6,450.83; Art and industrial art supplies, $1,719.37; caretakers' and cleaners' supplies, $4,410.26.

The attendance report for November showed a general decrease of 407 over November of last year.

Decrease was divided as follows High school, 207; intermediate 58 and elementary, 142.

A. E. Ottewell was in the chair.

Accidents Cause Damage To Planes

Two accidents have been reported in which United Air Services planes were damaged on landing, within the past few days. There was no injuries to passengers or crews or damage to cargo.

A Barkley-Grow plane, piloted by Bud Potter, had its undercarriage torn off when it struck a ditch after landing on the air field at Grande Prairie. The ditch is in a corner of the field, it is reported in a place where it was considered unlikely a plane would ever land either on landing or take-off. The plane is out of service until repairs can be made.

Some damage to a Noteseman plane, based at Yellowknife over the freeze-up period was caused when, in landing on the ice of the bay, it ran up on shore into the bush. The pilot was Joe Irwin.

Both planes are practically ready for service again, with repairs nearly completed, it was stated Wednesday by J. MacDougall, secretary of the company.

Many Tradesmen Still Required For New Force

Details of the mobilization of No. 1 Base Ordnance Corps, the new technical unit being recruited from all sections of the country for immediate service overseas, were discussed between Maj. F. H. Parsons, district ordnance officer, M.D. No. 13 and officers and N.C.O.'s of the Edmonton Garrison.

Maj. Parsons, as district ordnance officer, is in charge of recruiting of this unit for Alberta. He made several contacts with highly skilled technicians and it is expected that there will be some additions to his nominal roll as a result.

In all 1,000 highly trained men are required for this unit and practically all classes of tradesmen can be placed. Recruiting here is being carried out at No. 13A District depot, Prince of Wales armory.

At the same time, recruiting is proceeding steadily for the 23rd quota of reinforcements for the Canadian army (A).

By AL COLLETTI

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(CP)—Hockey followers in Brooklyn, one of those four-for-one deals has turned sour on Red Dutton . . . two years after they gave up Sweeney Schriner for Busher Jackson, Chuck Conacher, Buzz Boll and Doc Romnes . . . The Doc retired almost immediately, Conacher and Jackson have checked out and only Boll remains while Schriner is an important cog in the Toronto machine.

This year Dutton traded Lorne Carr for Gus Marker, Peanuts O'Flaherty, Red Heron and Nick Knott . . . Carr has been a hit with the Leafs while Monday Dutton announced the demotion of Heron, O'Flaherty and Earl Robertson to Springfield and the recall of Goalie Charlie Rayner and forward Nelson Larson and Bus Wycherley . . . The other part of the deal, Marker, has been out for weeks with a broken wrist and Knott hasn't shown much. Another sour one was Eddie Wiseman and $6,000 to the Bruins for Eddie Shore.

Action may not come until the next league meeting late this month . . . At a Ranger practice session last week, Boss Leader Patrick, who will be 58 New Year's eve, donned skates for the first time in 13 months and went out on the ice to give Goalie Jim Henry some helpful hints.

Patrick had the Rangers try another of his old attractions, when M. Weiss, general manager of the Yanke farm system, and the same year as rowside men, combative for the Blues and the Bruins.

Both managers guided their teams to Stanley Cup and league championships and always teamed on league playoffs.

Weeding Out Of Army's Unfit Points Lesson For Civilian Population Of Dominion

By LIEUT. F. H. WOODING

Selection of men for the Canadian Army depends on physical fitness, but who's to blame if some recruits slip past the medical authorities only to be discharged soon afterwards for some unsuspected ailment? The answer is, in most cases, the man himself.

The Directorate of Medical Services, commenting on the number of soldiers being demobilized from the service every month because of disabilities, replies to the question frequently asked these days: Why does the Army need more men when there has been no actual fighting involving Canadian soldiers?

The main reason, aside from the need of amassing an army for future operations, is that the percentage of discharges for physical reasons, while not high in comparison with other countries, is still serious enough to necessitate the continued enlistment of fit men to fill the gaps. Since mobilization of the Canadian Army in 1939, some 25,000 men have been returned to civilian life or given non-combatant or less strenuous duties commensurate with their physical capabilities.

THEY STILL BLUFF

The old game of bluffing, says the Directorate, is as predominant in this war as it was in the last, and while it is offset largely by the strict medical examinations and periodic boardings that are held prior to and following enlistment, a proportion succeed in slipping through with certain hidden ailments that later cause their discharge.

Men eager to serve have been known to resort to all manner of tricks to fool the authorities, a high-ranking officer of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps said. Memorizing the eye chart to cover up poor sight is an old gag but a popular one, and bland falsifying about the non-existence of previous stomach disorders has become routine. But, points out this officer, even the most experienced of army doctors are not always able to discover such ailments if the men themselves refuse to divulge the existence of the symptoms.

"Our medical officers employ every means of modern medical science to discover such conditions," he added, "but unless the men themselves are honest, and physique and appearance are normal, there is nothing we can do but pass them."

WHAT ABOUT POSTMEN?

Some men refuse to admit the existence of foot trouble, he pointed out, because they believe that if postmen with low arches can walk their route day after day there is no reason why they, too, can't stand up to the strain of marching. The truth is, however, that even postmen with foot trouble, despite their powers of endurance, would find precision marching with full pack a vastly different proposition.

This bluffing past the authorities appears to be unselfish patriotism, he said, but actually it is unpatriotic because the time and money that is spent on their training is almost completely wasted.

About 6.8 per cent of all recruits are found to be suffering from rupture and are consequently turned down for active service. To date, however, despite re-boardings overseas, only 14 men have come back from England due to that cause. Heart conditions have sent home 71, foot conditions 81, poor eyesight 50, and stomach ulcers 726, which is an insignificant proportion taken as a whole when it is remembered there are more than 100,000 Canadian soldiers now in the Old Country.

A very small percentage of these ailments, it is admitted, is the direct result of the rough and tumble of active service life; some existed but were not known to the men when they enlisted, and the rest existed but were not discoverable at the time of enlistment.

CIVILIAN CARELESS OF HEALTH?

"As a result of our examinations of thousands of men since the outbreak of war," another spokesman of the R.C.A.M.C. said, "we have found sufficient evidence to indicate that civilians generally are careless about health matters. What may seem to be just a tummy ache is often the warning signs of ulcers, but instead of getting medical advice the discomfort is endured until it passes off—only to recur at intervals until treatment is imperative. Diseases cannot be cured by complacency."

Army doctors board and reboard soldiers "at every turn of the road," it is emphasized, and troops show a real desire to take advantage of the free medical services that are provided. All drafts or units moving from one district to another or from one camp to another are examined and in this way unfit men are prevented from proceeding overseas. Men overseas are also being constantly boarded. If men seeking enlistment into the service would remember this there would be less tendency to try to deceive the medical authorities.

Once he is in the Canadian Army the soldier becomes one of the best medically-attended men in the world. Every ailment, no matter how small, gets immediate attention—something that the civilian should have but too often doesn't. At the soldier's hand are the best surgeons, consultants in medicine, modern hospitals, travelling X-ray units, in fact all the medical attention that the twentieth century can give.

Signs Of Winter—New Style

"How are the planes landing?" is the chief concern of Canada's northland dwellers, who can disregard the migration of game and other natural weather signals nowadays. For when the northern planes change from floats to skis and seek snow-clad fields for landing places instead of lakes, winter has arrived. Photos illustrate the change-over just completed by Wings Ltd., one of the Canadian Pacific Railway company's northern air network, at Lac du Bonnet, in Manitoba. Top, a Waco plane on pontoons, is "dollied" to the hangar for change-over, while another is fitted with ski landing gear.

"Three Traveled East"

By Ruth Ayers

SYNOPSIS

Two weeks before Christmas, Connie Dawson—attractive reporter on The Sentinel—ready to start on a special assignment to St. John's, Newfoundland, is told the New York Press Bureau has appointed a man instead. Connie's marriage to Jerry Marsh, piloting bombers to Britain, is scheduled for Jerry's Christmas furlough in the north. Flying to New York to see the bureau chief, storms ground Connie's plane. In the bus her seat neighbor, J. J. Patterson, unwittingly confides that he is on the way to her job! Three-year-old Skippy's mother is left in hospital en route and "Pat" promises to deliver the boy to relatives in the east. Snowbound, the passengers repair to a school house to take refuge for the night.

CHAPTER XIV

As she drowsed, head down on a desk, Connie felt someone brush by her.

She lifted her head quickly. No one was there. It was a dream, perhaps—something out of a nightmare Jerry Marsh, Pat Patterson and a little boy named Skippy had become shadowy figures weaving through her mind and heart, confusing her. She slumped down again, head on her arms, and slept uneasily for a little longer.

When she awoke, the hands of the clock on the wall were at eleven. Mid-morning and here they were, still in the schoolhouse. Other people were napping nearby, sealed at the scarred desks—curled up on benches. Outside, there was the same eternal dusting of snow. Connie stood up and looked for Pat.

He wasn't with the others in the room but Skippy sat, safe and comfortable in the lap of the middle-aged woman.

When he saw Connie, he ran toward her. She picked him up "How's my boy?"

"We go pretty soon—yes?"

"Oh, Skippy dear—yes! But it's fun here, don't you think? Blackboard and everything."

She went over and picked up a piece of chalk. "I'll draw you a picture of the school," she said. "Just the way it looked this morning." As she lifted her hand, something caught her attention. Words had been written across the board—hastily erased. In this light, close to it, Connie could read the faint interlacings of letters. "School is closed."

The chalk fell, snapping in pieces. So that was the delay. That's what had happened. And Janet Gregg, the young school teacher, hadn't wanted anyone to know. Connie warmed towards her. Yes, funny, she was seeing all three people through different eyes. But the one she wanted most to see was Pat Patterson. Just the sight of his red hair would be reassuring. If he were here nothing very bad could happen.

"Where's Pat?" she asked.

"Out with the other men," Janet answered without looking up. "They're making fresh paths—watching for the snowploughs."

The middle-aged woman spoke cheerfully. "This will is almost over, Mark my words, the sun will be out before noon. See, the sky's much brighter now."

"I hope you're right," Connie said.

She wasn't thinking of herself or even of the other travelers. Grown-ups able to take care of themselves. It was Skippy who was important. "Maybe you and I don't count for much," Pat had said. "But he does. We'll have to see him through—get him home safely."

Nervously, Connie put on her coat and went outside. There wasn't a sign of Pat, as she followed the new path to the deep snow blowing all around her. She was astonished, too, that what had seemed such a long way last night was so close today.

Running the last steps, she recognized Egan, the driver, and several of the men. They were armed with the few things which had been at hand — the water bucket, the broom and the two shovels and had already made a clearing around the listing bus.

Then she saw something else—deep snow tracks branching off from the path, black and plain, leading toward the timberline.

"You're about to be rescued, young lady," the drummer said, chewing hard on his cigar.

"Really—you mean it?"

"Yep, a funny thing. We all expected, of course, that someone would come through with a plough early. Then Egan got uneasy when nothing happened and said maybe he'd better do a little snow trekking and see if he couldn't hail someone. Up speaks this queer fellow—the gray-haired one, Jim Bardley. 'I'm the one to go,' he volunteers. 'Think I've got my bearings. It's familiar country to me.'"

Jim Bardley—the parolee who rode like a thief in the night!

"Did Pat Patterson go with him?"

The drummer nodded. "Sure thing."

Connie felt her heart sink like a sash weight. Pat hiking through these snow-billowing hills with a convict; being led who knew where? It was easy to see why Bardley wanted to get away. He'd never come back. And perhaps Pat wouldn't either. She began to tremble.

The drummer looked up, winking. "Kind of fell for that redhead, didn't you? Well, we all did. And don't be alarmed, sister. Bardley swore he knew where they were going—that it wasn't far. They ought to be back before noon, bringing help."

Connie had a desperate wish to follow those tracks, to go with them as far as they led until she reached Pat. But she remembered Skippy. That was her first job. She stumbled back to the school, tears and snow blinding her eyes.

When she reached the desk where she'd been sitting, she saw what must have been there all along. A note—her name printed across it.

She picked it up. "Dear Connie—Just in case I'm delayed, I want you to have Skippy's complete identification and the address in Connecticut where he's bound." It was signed "Pat" and beneath was a neatly lettered and brief biography of one Master Skippy Ernst.

Master Skippy, himself, quite unaware of what was happening, trailed around the room in Connie's house coat, munching the last apple which had turned up after all. He was fine—weathering the storm like the young trouper he was.

Back and forth Connie walked to the windows, straining for a sight of Pat returning. The clock reached twelve. No sign of him but there was something else. It was a brightening sky, a faint promise of lifted clouds and sun breaking through.

Connie was the first to see the figure—dim, slow-moving—returning over the snow tracks. She ran out bareheaded, and nothing could stop her, "Easy there," the drummer said. "Don't want no casualties out of this." But he was good-natured and tagged along with her. "Just like I say," he was chortling, "all in the same bus today. All be strangers again tomorrow."

He picked her up when she stumbled, and when she looked again, she saw that the man headed towards them wasn't Pat, but Jim Bardley.

It was plain he didn't want to see her—but she didn't care. Let him have her money, let him keep it. If only he hadn't let anything happen to Pat.

Afterwards she would think of herself as a little crazy in this minute. Yes, someone not quite sane and certainly not anything like Connie Dawson.

"What's happened to Pat Patterson?" she cried.

"Nothing's happened to him," Jim Bardley answered. "He's just not coming back right away. Had something important to do."

But nothing was more important than that Pat Patterson should come back safe to her and Skippy.

"You're lying!"

For answer, the parolee pointed in the direction of the trail which he'd just travelled. In the moon light coming through the disappearing storm clouds, Connie could see a distant road, barely visible over the far hilltop. Cars crawled along it like ants.

"That's the highway," the parolee said, as if he hadn't heard her accusation "There's a road crew working up there. After we directed them where to come to rescue us. Pat caught a ride. He's on his way to the nearest town to put through a long distance call."

The drummer took a good pull on his cigar. "Sure," he roared. "He's a newspaper man and a good one. Yep, gone to town with our life histories in his notebook. He'll telephone a story to the press that will make us all famous."

Slowly, the beautiful lost white world began to dissolve before Constance Dawson—newspaper girl,

One of the big problems even for the better bridge player is how to handle honor combinations. Today's hand shows an honor combination play that few players really understand. Read it over carefully and then try it on your future plays.

Opening—♥J 3

On winning the first trick with the ace, declarer cashed three top trumps. Then he led a low spade to the ace and returned a spade from dummy. When East played low, declarer figured, "If East had the king, he would not dare hold it up against our slam contract. Therefore West has the king."

So South played the nine, and the defense won two spade tricks. Declarer had underestimated the iron nerve of the East player.

Now it must be admitted that the spade holding offers only a guess as to the safest method of development. If East has both king and jack, this declarer's actual play would be best. If West held both honors, his play would lose at once.

In this dilemma, expert players prefer to develop the suit in one standard way whenever it appears, so as to avoid being "whipsawed" by wrong guesses. The play has a 75 per cent. chance to lose only one trick, and making the 25 per cent. risk is better in the long run than trying to outguess the cards.

The standard play is to double-finesse against the two honors. That is, lead the queen or nine and let it ride if not covered. Then later finesse against the remaining adverse honor, if necessary. The play of the queen is better than the play of the nine, because if East has a singleton jack, declarer will then win all four spade tricks, whereas the fall of the king blank would not yield four tricks.

Wage Increases Granted Railmen: Strike Is Averted

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—A presidential fact-finding board reported to President Roosevelt Tuesday that railroad labor and management representatives had reached a compromise agreement calling for basic wage increases of 70 cents a day for the operating brotherhoods and 60 cents a day for the non-operating brotherhoods.

The agreement means that a nation-wide strike called for Dec. 7 has been averted.
